Rock, Portland State and Northern Iowa.

Baylor freshman Brittney Griner, too, will get her first taste of the NCAA tournament. The Lady Bears earned a No. 4 seed and will play Fresno State in the first round. Griner, who drew national attention coming into college as a dunking phenom, made headlines again on March 3 after throwing a punch in a game against Texas Tech. She was suspended for two games by the school for her actions.

But it all comes back to UConn.

The Huskies could face No. 2 seed Ohio State in Dayton in the regional finals — if the Buckeyes can get by third seed Florida State.

"There are some teams in our bracket that are a lot better than people give them credit for," Auriemma said. "I like when you are playing teams that you're seeing for the first time, and are seeing you for the first time."

That's certainly not the case with the Cardinal (31-1), who beat the Huskies in the 2008 NCAA tournament semifinals. Stanford will open this year's tournament hosting UC Riverside in the Sacramento region.

Louisville became just the third team to play in the national championship game and not make the tournament the next season. The Cardinals are one of seven schools that are hosting first- and second-round games that won't be playing in the NCAA tournament.

The Big East and Big 12 each garnered seven bids. The SEC and ACC each had six. In all, 12 conferences received multiple bids — the highest number since 2001.

AP Sports Writer Beth Rucker in Knoxville, Tenn., and AP Writer Pat Eaton-Robb in Storrs, Conn., contributed to this report.

USD

"It's been a big bonus for our kids; I think they've enjoyed it."

Along the way this season have come speed bumps against some high-level D-I competition — mostly on the road.

USD has dropped games against NCAA tournament qualifiers Marquette, Kansas State and Cornell (at home), and has also played road contests against Texas Tech, Drake and Wyoming.

Quite a change to have to drive only two hours for a chance to face Creighton, Cutler said.

"Just add this to the list of tough teams we've played this year," the Brooklyn, N.Y. native said. "We've been hopping on planes all year, so a bus ride is like heaven for me. It'll be nice not having to worry about time changes."

An area that hasn't changed is USD's momentum.

The Coyotes have not lost since Jan. 21, when they fell to Utah Valley. Since that date, USD ran off an 10-0 record in league play, won the regular season title and claimed the tournament championship.

All while keeping in the back of their minds that a bid to the CIT was a distinct possibility.

"It felt really felt good to get it all done," said Cutler, the Great West tournament MVP. "It was a goal form the very start of the season. But we're not done yet. Hopefully we can get a win."

Doing that against a Bluejays team accustomed to postseason action will not be an easy task.

Creighton finished fourth in the Missouri Valley with a 10-8 record, and lost to Bradley in the first round of the conference tournament.

The Bluejays are led by junior center Kenny Lawson Jr. (13.1 ppg, 6.8 rpg) and senior forward Justin Carter (9.8 ppg, 6.1 rpg). Also giving CU production are junior Darryl Ashford (7.5 ppg) and sophomore Antoine Young (6.6 ppg).

Creighton head coach Dana Altman, in his 16th season, admitted that though he may not be familiar with USD, it's the defense presented by the Coyotes that concerns him.

"I know coach Boots is known for playing a lot of matchup zones. Other than that, I don't know much about them," Altman said during a media teleconference Monday.

"That zone will present a lot of problems, so hopefully we'll play well."

Offensively for USD, three players average in double figures. Great West Player of the Year Tyler Cain leads in scoring (14.7) and rebounding (10.5), while Roman Gentry (13.4 ppg) and Jake Thomas (13.1 ppg) also lead the way.

One familiar face for Creighton fans is USD sixth-year senior center Smith (7.8 ppg, 4.5 rpg). Smith spent two injury-plagued years at Creighton, 2004-05 and 2005-06, before transferring to USD.

Creighton and USD have played two common opponents this season, Drake and Houston Baptist. The Bluejays split with Drake, while the Coyotes dropped their only matchup. And against Houston Baptist, USD was 3-0 and Creighton claimed an 85-56 win.

The USD vs. Creighton series is a different story, though.

Though Creighton holds the edge in the series, 47-11, the schools have not played each other since 1968. And put simply, a lot has changed in 42 years.

"It's a huge plus for us to get a chance to play a team like Creighton," Boots said. "It'll enhance our Division I transition. I think there are a lot of long-term benefits for a game like this.

"We'll see things that we have to do to be competitive at this level."

ALL-ESD

be big key for us. How much improvement do we make as individual players?" he said. "And if we do that, if we do make a lot of individual progress, you can't help but have a better team."

Also named to the All-ESD team were Aberdeen Central's Alison Kusler (Jr.) and Ashley LaFave (Sr.), Huron's Mandi Robish (Sr.) and Lavin Stahl (Sr.), Brandon Valley's Heidi Hoff (So.), Brookings' Cassidy Kotelman (Jr.), Mitchell's Kerri Young (Fr.), Pierre's Paige Burkett (Sr.) and Watertown's Brittany Lehner (Sr.).

Earning honorable mention selections were Brandon Valely's Laura Hieb (Sr.) and Kate Swenson (Sr.), Aberdeen Central's Hilary Peterson (Sr.), Brookings' Ashley Odegaard (Sr.), Huron's Taylor Carlson (Sr.), Mitchell's Kristin Sabers (Fr.), Pierre's Amber Olson (Jr.) and Watertown's Tia Hemiller (So.).
