Officials Say U.S. Missiles Kill 4 In Pakistan

MIR ALI, Pakistan (AP) — Suspected U.S. drones fired missiles Sunday at a house and car in a militant-dominated tribal region near the Afghan border, killing at least four people, officials said.

The attack occurred in the Datta Khel area of North Waziristan, two intelligence officials said.

The drones fired three missiles, they added, speaking on condition of anonymity because they were not authorized to talk to the media.

The identities of those killed were not known, though the region is dominated by the Taliban's Haqqani network, which is blamed for launching attacks across the border against American and NATO forces in Afghanistan.

Separately, the bullet-riddled bodies of four Pakistani tribesmen, killed for allegedly spying for the United States, were found Sunday elsewhere in North Waziristan, witnesses and officials said. Officials said the four dead tribesmen were kidnapped by the Taliban about 10 days ago.

Gul Akber Khan, who lives in the village of Srahkula, just outside of Mir Ali, said he heard gunshots in the middle of the night. When he went to the mosque for morning prayers a few hours later, he found the bodies dumped along the road into Miran Shah, the main city in North Waziristan.

beginning of Volin and Gayville's participation with the Horizons program.

In fact, before the check was presented to the overall Volin-Gayville Horizons Steering Committee, other "physical gifts" were presented as rewards for accomplishing this first step.

First, both a formal "graduation" letter, noted as a "memento" honoring both communities for this first step, and a official document highlighting overall community contribution were presented to the crowd.

"Oftentimes, what communities don't think about is that there is value to everyone's participation in the project," Trautman said.

Next, an overhead projector was awarded to the communities for their efforts in spreading a message through blogging and social networking.

Two laptops, one for each community, were also awarded for the specific purpose of each community doing additional research for improving the partnership.

Finally, special "Horizons" road signs were presented to both communities in the hope they would show their participation in the program.

Trautman's presentation Sunday stressed the potential that can develop over several years.

She cited a pilot project in Timber Lake, which in the process of several years had great things to say about an improved quality of life.

David Olson, a financial "community coach" from SDSU, said he will visit every month or so to keep tabs on how Gayville and Volin are doing, and that ultimate success in the Horizons program comes with both independent and outside responsibility.

"The trick (to unite the communities) is to get all of you together — you know each other, but the process needed to happen," he said.

The celebration also featured a free dance workshop, a free spaghetti dinner with ice cream and music throughout the rest of the night.
