Better Business Bureau:

Ignore that Text! You Didn't Win a Walmart Gift Card

Cell phone users across the country are receiving suspicious text messages that claim to be from Walmart. The text message tells consumers they won a free gift card... and all they have to do is click a link and enter their information to receive the prize. Unfortunately, there is no gift card. It's a scam to steal your credit card number and other personal information.

This scam has several versions. In one, the text reads "You just won a free $1000 Walmart Gift Card, enter '1000' at LINK." In another, it says: "Walmart $1000 Gift Card for the first 1000 users to go to LINK and enter code 2938."

The texts also use different URLs, including:

- promocenterdaily.com/walmart_gift
- promocenter.ws/walmart
- walmartgift.mobi

"The text message is a twist on the classic email phishing scam, where scammers pose as a legitimate organization and send out emails containing links to scam sites. Phishing scams using SMS technology are known as 'smishing', Jim Hegarty said, president and CEO of the Better Business Bureau.

This photo shows the text message some people are receiving concerning a gift card presented as a prize.

When you receive a spam text message on your phone, forward the text to the shortcode 7726 (which spells "SPAM"). You'll then receive an automated message from your wireless carrier, asking you then to enter the phone number from which the spam text was sent.

Gardening Class Slated For Yankton Library April 5

The Yankton Community Library, 515 Walnut St., is hosting a spring workshop entitled "Starting Seeds, Container Gardening, Basics of Starting A Garden" which will be held at 7 p.m. Thursday, April 5.

Master Gardener Mary Klimczyk will teach her method of starting seeds. Master Gardener Betts Pulkrabek will talk on container gardens and the basics of starting a garden. The evening will close with a round table discussion of gardening problems and solutions. Pulkrabek and Klimczyk will sprinkle in plenty of humor in their gardening tips.

This is a class for both experienced and beginning gardeners. There is no registration required and no limit to the class size.

For further information, contact the library at 668-5275.

Farmers Market Training Set For Santee

SANTEE, Neb. — A free training session on farmers markets will be held at the Santee Community Center at 6 p.m. Monday, March 26. The topic for this session will be "Preparing for the Farmers Market and Selling at the Farmers Market."

"Anyone that is interested in buying or selling at a market should plan to attend the workshop," according to Sandy Patton, coordinator of the former Farmers' Market Moms Program. "The information will be particularly helpful to beginning gardeners who are considering becoming a market vendor during the upcoming season."

If interested in learning how to successfully sell garden produce, baked goods, jams and jellies, honey, eggs, arts and crafts, or whatever your specialty you won't want to miss this free event. Patton will be sharing information on how to set up at a market and how to sell at a market.

Other topics will include information on the "Senior Nutrition Program" and how you can become involved in the local Farmers' Market. Attendees will also receive a free Farmers' Market Moms T-shirt.

Informational meetings are held every other Monday evening in Santee. Topics always include gardening, community gardens and the local farmers market. Everyone is welcome to attend.

For more information contact Jim Halum at 402-288-4298, or Sandy Patton at 402-842-2555.

The Center for Rural Affairs and the USDA Rural Development are Equal Opportunity Providers, Employers, and Lenders.
