Movies

War II thriller that George Clooney will star in and direct; and Martin Scorsese's "The Wolf of Wall Street," starring Leonardo DiCaprio and distributed by Paramount Pictures.

But executives caution that blindly following a trend when choosing which movies to make isn't wise.

"If you base it on movies that are popular now, you are going to get your heart broken," said Stacey Snider, co-chairman of DreamWorks. Her company made "Lincoln," which has grossed $178.6 million domestically and won two Oscars. "If we were trend-followers or made movies because they felt du jour, we never would have made 'The Help,' we never would have made 'Lin-

Studio executives say that they would be inclined to take more risks on adult fare if costs can be kept down. Donna Langley, co-chairman of Universal, said that a movie like her studio's "Les Miserables," which cost $61 million to produce — a relatively moderate budget for a stardriven musical — made sense economically. The film, the winner of three Oscars, has taken in $146.7 million domestically.

"Both studios and creators are saying, 'Look, we don't want to forego this genre," Langley said. "It becomes a question of rolling up our sleeves and looking at the financial model."

Adam Goodman, president of the Paramount Film Group, said that in years past, his studio would have made a movie like the Oscar-nominated "Flight," which cost the company just $30 million, but the budget would have been two or three times

"We know the audience is there for that kind of movie," he said. "The challenge is to adjust the budgets."

Helping the studios shoulder the risk are independent financial partners such as producers Megan Ellison, who bankrolled the $45 million-budget "Zero Dark Thirty," and Graham King, who put up half the money to make "Argo," which cost $44.5 million.

King, who won the best picture Oscar in 2007 for "The Departed," said he is encouraged by the commercial success of this year's Academy Award pictures.

"For me, and the kind of films I make, it opens my range.

TOASTMASTER CLUB 6217

Guest, and former Toastmaster, Na'ahma Golden, was welcomed by Toastmaster Muriel Stach Feb. 21, 2013, at Avera Sacred Heart Hospital Toastmasters Club noon meeting in the KPI conference room.

Gale Vogt was introduced and led the invocation using "words of a wise man's mouth are gracious ..." from Speakers were Eileen O'Connor and Eric Taylor. O'Connor's humorous, manual speech entertained the audience with "Monastery Mardi Gras" tales, a variation on Mother Goose. Taylor's "Uncle Sam Needs You!" speech was to inform and persuade the members that part of America's debt solution lies with promoting Liberty Bonds sales.

O'Connor was evaluated by Steve Anderson while Taylor got tips from Tim Bohn. Both speakers were praised for using visual aides. They also were within time via Greg Stach, timer, and watched their "ahs" through Jane Miller.

Table Topics Master Joe Neuhalfen had members write a secret tidbit about their life. Then, other members guessed who was being described. Many respondents used Chelsi Hames' word of the day "fizzled." Those called upon were Steve Anderson discussing water skiing; Kary Beltz picking a future professional softball player; MJ Rogers naming a Brussels sprouts lover; and Jennifer Wubben guessing who was shy until college.

Awards and announcements concluded the meeting. Trophies were given to Best Speaker Taylor, Best Respondent Wubben, and Best Evaluator Bohn. Announcements included the March 7 "working meeting" (allowing members an opportunity to document their own achievements and goals) and the upcoming Area 62 Speech and Evaluation Contest March 14 in Freeman.
