Baby Einstein Founder To Speak At USD

VERMILLION — The University of South Dakota Beacom School of Business and the University of South Dakota School of Law are co-sponsoring two presentations by Julie Aigner Clark, founder of Baby Einstein, at 4 p.m. on Tuesday, March 12, and at 9 a.m. on Wednesday, March 13. Both lectures, which are free and open to the public, will be at Houtz Auditorium in Beacom Hall.

Aigner Clark is a full-time mom and former teacher, best known for founding The Baby Einstein Company, a start-up business that was born in her basement and became an internationally acclaimed, multimillion-dollar company in less than five years. Credited with creating an entirely new industry, she brought the arts to babies and toddlers in child-friendly ways that exposed an entire generation to classical music, art and poetry. Her Baby Einstein videos and books have been translated into more than 20 languages and have been on the New York Times Best Sellers list since the company's start up more than 15 years ago.

In addition to founding Baby Einstein, Aigner Clark is also the founder of The Safe Side, a company dedicated to keeping children safe and to giving back to The National Center for Missing and Exploited Children. Most recently, she authored a children's book, "You Are the Best Medicine," inspired by her own battle with breast cancer.

For more information, contact the Beacom School of Business at (605) 677-5455 or email business@usd.edu; or contact the School of Law at (605) 677-5443 or email law@usd.edu.

ON THIS DATE

75 YEARS AGO
Saturday, March 5, 1938
• One of the warmest election contests Yankton has witnessed in several years — over the question of granting a 20-year natural gas franchise — will reach its climax next Tuesday when the voters will go to the polls to say "For" or "Against" on the one issue presented.
• Ira N. Gabrielson, of Washington, chief of the biological survey, in talks at a dinner given in his honor at Hotel Yankton and over radio station WNAX last night, as guest here of the local chapter of the Izaak Walton League, told of long-range objectives the survey has in view under the provisions of the Pittman-Robertson act and other legislation which is expected to work in conservation matters about the same as the federal highway act has worked in providing highways throughout the nation.

meal elsewhere.

Currently, The Center is also offering any community member, regardless of age, free tax services.

"We have tax aides on duty all throughout tax season to provide tax services, and before the season is over, more than 350 individuals and families will come to The Center to get their taxes done," Hauer said.

Among the other free services The Center provides include a nurse consultant on duty, Medicare Part D assistance, a commodities program to help supplement low-income seniors' grocery needs, a pet food assistance program, a senior companion program and a program that allows volunteers to shovel seniors' driveways and sidewalks during snow.

The Center is also a Red Cross facility because of its generator, so if people living near The Center lose power, they can go there until power is restored.

"Running this event helps us continue to provide those free services we have for the community," Hauer said. "In years past, we've typically raised about $4,500 during the event, but this year I'm hoping it's around $10,000. There has already been around 150 tickets sold, which is outstanding."

In addition to the tickets sold, Hauer estimates that prizes will add up to about $7,500 after the auction ends. She added that ticket sales are up this year, and some of the prizes are valued a lot more than they have been able to get in
