lenge of playing Tevye. This has been by far the most challenging (role) that I have attempted. But I enjoy it, I really do," he said. "I try to identify with the character of Tevye. He has his devotion to his people, faith and family. I think we can even identify with it in our small rural towns today."

Like the characters in "Fiddler On The Roof," rural families seek to give their children a good education and better opportunities, Ortman said.

"But then, (our children) leave us for another place," he said. "We wish them well as they follow those opportunities, but we're also sorry that they are leaving their home community."

Ortman said his wife helps him learn his massive number of lines.

"I try to portray my character as more light-hearted," he said. "Tevye is well liked among both the Jews and the Russian constable, at least at the start of the However, Tevye also suffers a conflicted existence, Ortman said.

"Tevye faces a tremendous struggle involving his daughter (who marries outside the faith)," he said. "Does he support his daughter and turn his back on his faith and people? Or does he support his faith and people, and shun his own daughter?"

Ortman feels so strongly about "Fiddler" that he would have taken any role to be in it.

This is the third time that Schmeckfest is performing 'Fiddler On The Roof,'" he said. "We pro-duced it in 1972, when I was 10 years old. I can recall the scenes and remember the main characters. The second time they produced it, I was in college and away from home."

Ortman also wanted to be in the musical because Schmeckfest raises funds for Freeman Academy. He graduated from the academy in 1980, attended one year at the now-closed Freeman Junior College, then transferred to Bethel College in Newton, Kan.

"There is a sense of community (with Schmeckfest)," he said. "The proceeds go toward Freeman Academy, which is near and dear to my family because I went here and we have two kids here."

Waltner, who plays Golde, is no stranger to the Schmeckfest stage.

TUESDAY PRIMETIME/LATE NIGHT

"I started doing the Schmeck-fest plays in 1989 with 'Brigadoon' and have done the musical nearly every year, except when I was pregnant," she said. "There is lively acting and singing, which I enjoy. And for the cast and audience, it's a fun escape from reality for a short time."

Waltner, an instrumental music teacher in the Viborg-Hurley schools, has created her own interpretation of Golde.

"I try to find a balance between being the nag and shrew — the headstrong woman who does what it takes to run her home — while being the loving mama, too," she Even before the curtain rises on "Fiddler," Waltner said this year's production is already special.

"My two sons are in the cast, and my two daughters are in the orchestra playing flute and keyboard," she said. "It's just been great to be part of this with my family."

TAKING THE RIGHT (DANCE) STEP

She won't be seen on stage, but choreographer Kathryn (Rose) Reimler of Yankton will help ensure the cast puts its best foot forward.

Reimler has previously choreographed the Schmeckfest productions of "Wizard of Oz" and "Joseph and The Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat." She is working with Koch and a number of cast members for the first time.

Reimler first attended a Schmeckfest musical as a young girl when her father, the late David Elder, played in the orchestra. She has remained a fan of the production, even trekking about 70 miles round-trip for rehearsals.

"I like working with Schmeck-fest and the people," she said. "Along with their commitment and how kind they have been to me they all have incredible vocal talent! I have always been so impressed. There are so many talented musicians there!"

With "Fiddler," she faces the challenge of creating numerous intricate dances, including those with the entire cast.

"The first major dance is 'Tradition!', the opening number, and getting everybody on stage," she said. "Then, you have the little dialogue scenes within and around
