crete medical evidence rather than anecdotes. Peterson said he's concerned that people aren't carefully considering the potential longterm health effects on youths, pointing to medical studies that suggest it leads to memory loss and other brain problems

Garrett said the bill would help alleviate suffering for a narrowly tailored range of medical problems, and would allow the state to regulate its quality and potency. Doctors could prescribe the drug for epilepsy, Crohn's disease, Huntington's disease, glaucoma, multiple sclerosis, Lou Gehrig's disease and chemotherapy-induced nausea. Garrett said he plans to expand the list to include post-traumatic stress disorder.

Maggie Graham, a 62year-old retired teacher from Omaha, said marijuana would help her cope with diabetes, fibromyalgia, arthritis and high blood pressure. Graham traveled to Colorado after it was legalized and saw that marijuana helped ease her pain and regulate her blood-sugar levels.

"It gave me the energy I needed to get through the day," she said.

Graham said the drug helped relieve her sister's suffering after she was diagnosed with a rare cancer, and would have helped a

The debate comes as local and state officials in Nebraska try to overturn neighboring Colorado's decision to legalize recreational marijuana. On Thursday, sheriffs from Colorado, Kansas and Nebraska sued the state of Colorado for decriminalizing pot. The attornevs general of Nebraska and Oklahoma have asked the U.S. Supreme Court to declare the voter-approved Colorado policy unconstitutional.

"Ås public officials, we have a responsibility to create a brighter future for young Nebraskans," Peterson said. "The frustration I have is that a lot of Nebraskans may be taking this lightly.'

Peterson said he's concerned that legalization bills send a message to teenagers that marijuana isn't a big deal, and that medical marijuana could open the door to recreational pot.

"I understand that there are some very compelling, emotional stories," he said. "But once medical marijuana gets in, it's just the first step.

District administrative offices. But YAPG housing task force director Dan Specht told the Press & Dakotan Thursday the number of apartments isn't necessarily set in stone.

"(Seventy) is the preliminary plan," Specht said. "That could change as we move forward with financing and those kinds of things. ... This same builder just built one in Aberdeen that was 77 (units) and then he built one in Mitchell with 60, so it could vary some.

Mingo said it could benefit the market to have this many units added since the housing study may have looked at more conservative estimates.

"Our housing study said we do need that many (units), but not in one lump," he said. "But since the housing study was done, we've also had the manufacturers come and say instead of 300-500 people, they have a need for more like 500-800 people. What the housing analysis says, I think, is a very conservative estimate as for what we need for housing.'

In other business Thursday, the committee discussed:

• Building permits in the city for January.

• Business signage on the Highway 52 corridor. Set their next meeting for May 14.

Vermillion Library Moving To New System

VERMILLION — By the end of March, the Edith B. Siegrist Vermillion Public Library will cease to have access to its longtime integrated library software system, ALEPH.

Due to changes at the state level, ALEPH will no longer be accessible to public libraries, prompting this big change. The new system, Atriuum, will allow library staff to continue the necessary record-keeping for the library, but will also be a fresh start with a more user-friendly and modern interface. Patrons will also notice the difference in searching the online catalog once the system is live.

In order to prepare for the new system, the library will be closed to the public on Friday, March 20, in order to facilitate an in-house staff training.

75 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, March 6, 1940

 Should Yankton celebrate the Fourth of July this year and if so, how? The question has been presented to the Yankton County Old Settlers' association which plans to find an answer.

• W. Norman Rapalee, who had previously announced his candidacy for the office of mayor of Yankton to succeed E. A. Crockett, whose term expires this spring, announced this morning that he does not intend to file for the post.

50 YEARS AGO

Saturday, March 6, 1965

 The Classis of Dakota, Reformed church in America, met Thursday evening at the Riverview Park Reformed church to install Rev. Gilbert Visser as pastor. The Rev. Paul Vander Woude, Springfield preached the sermon and the Rev. Wayne Tripp, Monroe, presiding officer of the Classis, read the installation form. Darwin Tietgen led the Bonesteel Tigers to a 57-55 consolation win over the challenging Platte Panthers here last night for third place in Region seven. Teitgen tallied 16 points against the Panthers' defense to lead all scorers in the tilt. The stocky 6'2" senior cager was also formidable under the boards for the Tigers.

25 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, March 6, 1990 Yankton may get a waterslide at the Memorial Park swimming pool in 1991 if the city commission approves a park board recommendation for the five-year capital improvement plan. The Yankton Park Board rescheduled a $75,000

waterslide project to 1991 at its meeting Monday night.

• Because safety is now a stricter requirement for a water safety instruction certificate, several local groups have set up a training weekend for WSI recertification Feb. 17-18. Nancy Tea-chout, WSI-certified swimming instructor and local American Red Cross secretary, said the class is a cooperative effort between the Humane Services Center, The Red Cross, Sacred Heart Wellness Center and the local parks and recreation department.
