Center in Lincoln. The Wynot girls began the day with a 42-32 win over Sandhills-Thedford in Class D2 action, while Crofton followed with 56-35 win over Guardian Angels Central Catholic. What we've got now is Wynot in a sixth consecutive state championship game and Crofton in a fifth straight title game

Wynot, Crofton Making Title Runs Again

Of the two programs in small towns, what Wynot does is especially impressive, in my opinion. Consider: · Wynot has a high school enrollment of 40 students, 22 of whom are girls, according to head coach Steve Wieseler.

 The Blue Devils certainly aren't the tallest team in their class. They're certainly not the most athletic. They're certainly not the most potent on offense (as was clear in Friday afternoon's semifinal win) But what Wynot has are kids that buy into a defensive system that, quite frankly, would wear out most teams. Wynot's staple is its full-court, pressure defense. And to have such a system, you've got to be deep. Which means you've got to develop the girls young, because there's a good chance, they'll be counted on as freshmen. Crofton, as you well know, is heads and shoulders above any other program in Class C2, and some would argue the rest of the state. The Lady Warriors, at 28-0, have reeled off 52 straight wins and not only beat teams down here in Lincoln but thrash them.

Put another way, we've got some pretty salty girls' basketball programs just across the Missouri River.
