Runoff Higher, River Level Below Normal

OMAHA, Neb. — The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (Corps) Missouri River Basin Water Management Division reports runoff in the Missouri River Basin above Sioux City, Iowa, was 2 million acre feet (MAF) during February, 186 percent of normal.

The increased runoff was caused by above normal temperatures in the upper Missouri Basin that limited river ice buildup, and melted both plains and low elevation mountain snows. However, the 2015 runoff forecast in the same reach is 24.6 MAF, 97 percent of normal, and the March runoff forecast is about 1 MAF less than in February.

'The reservoirs are designed to capture spring runoff that is stored and released during the summer and fall to provide water for navigation, hydropower, water supply for municipalities and power plants and other uses. Essentially. runoff that would normally arrive in the regions above Fort Peck and Garrison dams during March and April occurred early this year," said Jody Farhat, chief of the Corps' Missouri River Basin Water Management Division.

The lower runoff forecasted in March is a result of slightly below normal mountain snowpack above Fort Peck and Garrison dams, drving soil moisture conditions and light plains snowpack. As of March 1, mountain snowpack was 88 percent of normal in the reach above Fort Peck Dam and 97 percent of normal in the reach between Fort Peck and Garrison dams. Typically about 80 percent of the peak mountain snowpack accumulation has occurred by early March. View mountain snowpack graphic at http://www.nwdmr.usace.army.mil/rcc/reports/snow.pdf.

The total volume of water stored in the Missouri River Mainstem Reservoir System is 57.1 MAF, occupying 1 MAF of the 16.3 MAF flood control zone. "The Corps will continue to monitor snowpack, rainfall-runoff and basin soil conditions to fine tune the regulation of the reservoir system based on the most up-to-date

Military Academy Day Set For SF

WASHINGTON - Sen. Mike Rounds (R-S.D.) has announced his office is hosting a Military Academy Day in Sioux Falls so students can learn more about the academy enrollment process at our nation's military academies.

The Military Academy Day in Sioux Falls will be held Saturday, March 28, at Southeast Technical Institute (Mickelson Center, Room 101) 2320 N Career Ave.

The Sioux Falls Academy Day will be the first in a series across the state, including in Pierre and Rapid City. Others may be added.

'Our nation's academies offer an opportunity to serve our nation while receiving top-notch education," said Rounds. The purpose of Military Academy Day is to provide students a one-stop opportunity to learn more about each of the academies and the application process. I encourage interested students and their families to attend.'

Military Academy Day is an informational seminar for students and their parents interested in attending one of the five service academies: U.S. Military Academy at West Point, U.S. Naval Academy, U.S. Air Force Academy, U.S. Coast Guard and U.S. Merchant Marine Academy.

For more information about Military Academy Day or the academy nominations process, contact Michele Mustain at michele_mustain@rounds.senate.gov or call Rounds' Sioux Falls office at (605) 336-0486.
