MAIDS OF DISHONOR

A funny thing has happened to the wedding comedy: In recent years it's become less about the farcical misunderstandings and more about the bride and groom than those between bride and best bud. Ginnifer Goodwin initiates a bridesmaid war in "Something Borrowed" (May 6), unsure whether she can be attendant to Bridezilla Kate Hudson because she herself is in love with the groom ... Kristen Wiig crows and stars in "Bridesmaids" (May 13), Paul Feig's raunchfest in which the unstrung Wiig fears losing her best friend (Maya Rudolph) — not to her fiancé but to sister bridesmaid Rose Byrne.

PAGE TO SCENE

Bestsellers and comic books inspire the season's literary and graphic adaptations. They include gods who walk with humans, humans who become superhumans, and ordinary mortals who commit heroic acts. Kenneth Branagh's "Thor" (May 6), based on the Marvel Comics hero, stars Chris Hemsworth as the thunder god banished by his father (Anthony Hopkins) to earth and found by scientist Jane Foster (Natalie Portman) ... "Green Lantern" (June 17), the DC Comics tale of a human test pilot recruited into a superhero fraternity, features Ryan Reynolds as Hal Jordan, given a cosmic emerald ring, and Blake Lively as his pilot/girlfriend ... Lone Scherfig's "One Day" (July 8), based on the David Nicholls novel chronicling the on/off, up/down relationship of college friends Anne Hathaway and Jim Sturgess, reckons the gap between ambition and fulfillment ... Wayne Wang's "Snow Flower and the Secret Fan" (July 15), from Lisa See's novel about female friendship and resistance to cultural expectations, jumps between 19th- and 21st-century China ... "The Help" (Aug. 12), based on Kathryn Stockett's 1960s-era bestseller, stars Viola Davis as a Jackson, Miss., domestic and Emma Stone as a debutante whose secret conversations about black women raising white children rock their town.

PLAYING FOR LAUGHS

Edgy comedy, sophisticated dramedy, family-friendly farce, love, laughter — it's all here. Woody Allen directs "Midnight In Paris" (May 27), an Allenesque rom-com with Owen Wilson, Rachel McAdams, and France's first lady, Carla Bruni-Sarkozy ... Jim Carrey tries winning back audiences with "Mr. Popper's Penguins" (June 17), playing a business guy who huddles with some cute waddling antarctic birds ... Cameron Diaz is the titular terror of "Bad Teacher" (June 24), a soused instructor looking to bag Justin Timberlake ... Jason Bateman, Charlie Day and Jason Sudeikis conspire to kill their "Horrible Bosses" (July 8) in the dark, Seth Gordon-directed comedy ... "Crazy, Stupid, Love" (July 29) tries to work yuks out of marital discord, with Steve Carell, Ryan Gosling and Julianne Moore.

OUT OF THE BOX

Happily, even on the summer season's formula-filled slate, there's room for the offbeat, the strange, the picture that doesn't fit neatly into a slot. In "Everything Must Go" (May 13) funnyman Will Ferrell tries his hand at the serious business of playing a drunk who has just lost his job and his wife ... In "Submarine" (June 10), a Scottish teen tries to lose his virginity, and eccentric behavior (and filmmaking) ensues. Wes Anderson, anyone? ... Ewan McGregor, Christopher Plummer, and Melanie Laurent star in "Beginners" (June 3), a very personal project from "Thumbsucker's" Mike Mills ... One of the hottest properties to come out of this year's Sundance, "Another Earth" (July 22) is an indie sci-fi starring Brit Marling as an MIT student who discovers a planet just like ours ... Zombieland's Jesse Eisenberg reteams with director Ruben Fleischer in "30 Minutes or Less" (Aug. 12), a nutball caper comedy about a pizza delivery guy coerced into robbing a bank. Deadpan doofus Danny McBride also stars.
