DLR Videos Help Improve Claimant Compliance

PIERRE — The South Dakota Department of Labor and Regulation (DLR) has created two videos to help unemployment insurance (UI) benefit claimants understand the filing process and comply with established rules.

One video provides guidance on how to properly file a UI claim, and the other features tips on preventing fraud. Both are available on the DLR YouTube channel at www.youtube.com/SouthDakotaDLR.

"This is an effort to help educate claimants of their responsibilities and save employers money in the long run," said State Labor and Regulation Secretary Pam Roberts. "Overall, our goal is to reduce improper unemployment benefit payments."

DLR routinely investigates potential unreported earnings cases. It also looks into a wide range of other types of potential fraudulent conduct. The integrity of the state's unemployment fund is crucial to its solvency and availability to people who are legitimately eligible for benefits.

In order to be eligible for unemployment benefits, claimants must be unemployed, able to work, looking for new work and cannot refuse suitable work when offered.

Claimants who misrepresent information in order to receive benefits must repay all the benefits fraudulently received. In such cases, they also forfeit the right to some future benefits. Blatant cases of fraud will be referred to the attorney general for prosecution.

"Staff investigate claims on a continuing basis," said Secretary Roberts. "Last year, we found 3,347 overpayments totaling $1.8 million."

A U.S. Department of Labor grant for $100,000 made this educational outreach possible. The grant is also being used towards other efforts in a messaging campaign. To report tips on potential fraud, contact the Benefit Payment Control Unit at 605-626-7649 or unemploymentfraud@state.sd.us.

USD To Honor Graduating Native American Students

VERMILLION — The University of South Dakota will honor graduating Native American students at the fourth annual Native American Graduate Honoring ceremony at 5 p.m. Friday, May 4, at the Muenster University Center.

Sponsored by Native Student Services, the cultural heritage ceremony recognizes the accomplishments of graduating Native American students and their supporters. Lynelle Noisy Hawk, M.D., Oglala-Hunkpapa from Fort Yates, N.D., and an alumna of the University of South Dakota Sanford School of Medicine, will deliver the keynote address. The celebration also includes a dinner and ceremony featuring traditional regalia, singing of honor songs and other appropriate cultural protocols. This event precedes the University of South Dakota's 125th spring commencement at the Dakota Dome on Saturday, May 5.

Noisy Hawk began her work in August 2007 as a medical officer at the Fort Yates, N.D. Indian Health Service (IHS) Hospital where she currently serves as the clinical director. She utilizes both modern medical health care and traditional Lakota healing ceremonies in her practice of medicine. Noisy Hawk completed her B.S. at South Dakota State University in 1997 and was accepted into the Indians Into Medicine program (INMED) at the University of North Dakota. She subsequently transferred to the University of South Dakota and completed her M.D. in 2003. Married to Todd Goodsell, a University of South Dakota graduate, Noisy Hawk is a full blood Lakota from the Oglala and Hunkpapa Tribal Nations. Her Lakota name, Kagnigapi Win, means "The Chosen Woman."

Drug Take-Back Event Yields 98 Pounds

From P&D Staff Reports

A prescription drug take-back event held Saturday by the Yankton Police Department and the Drug Enforcement Agency yielded the highest collection in the three years it has been held in the community.

According to Police Chief Brian Paulsen, a total of 98.3 pounds of medications were collected. That compares to 65 pounds in 2011 and 18 pounds in 2010.

The Retired Seniors Volunteer Program assisted the police department with the event. The following businesses were drop off locations: Walmart, HyVee, Walgreen's, Rexall Drug, the Yankton Community Library and the Yankton Medical Clinic.

"Prescription drug abuse is an ever-growing problem and by 'cleaning out the cabinet,' hopefully less medications will make it to the hands of our children and drug abusers," Paulsen said.

MMC Forum To Feature 'Paddlefish' Readings

This Thursday's Mount Marty College Noon Forum will feature MMC student "Paddlefish" publication readings. The forum will also feature an awards presentation of the 2012 student award winners for poetry, fiction, and nonfiction.

The event will take place at noon in the South Dining Room of the Roncalli Center on the MMC campus and is free and open to the public.

City Reminds Residents To Cut Grass, Weeds

Lawns are greening up, and the hum of lawnmowers can be heard all around the Yankton community. Overgrown grass and weeds aren't just unsightly; they're a violation of city ordinance.

Yankton residents are reminded that grass should be maintained at 8 inches or lower and yards free of noxious weeds. Weeds must be cut or chemically treated. Dandelions are not considered a noxious weed, so while they maybe "obnoxious," they are not "noxious."

SET Program Applications Now Available

BROOKINGS — Applications are now being accepted for a new "Stronger Economies Together (SET)" Program to provide training and technical assistance for rural regional economic development. Application deadline is May 4.

SDSU Extension and USDA Rural Development (USDA RD) are collaborating for this initiative. It will strengthen the capacity of rural communities and counties to work together in developing and implementing economic development blueprints that strategically build on the current and emerging economic strengths of the region. The SET Program is sponsored by USDA RD and the nation's four Regional Rural Development Centers.

Two regions in South Dakota will be awarded the opportunity to receive training and technical assistance delivered by a core team of Extension and RD staff. Topics include building a strong regional team; developing vision and goals; examining regional demographics, opportunities, and assets and barriers; and creating a regional economical development plan.

For questions, additional information or applications contact Christine Sorensen, USDA RD Coordinator at christine.sorensen@sd.usda.gov or 605-224-8870 Ext. 123 or 605-530-5353. A complete application must be sent electronically to Christine no later than May 4.
