TYNDALL — "Photo Journal of Bon Homme County" is now on exhibit from May 19 to June 30 at the Art & Antique Gallery on Main Street in Tyndall.

In the exhibit, photos from the late 1800s to mid-1900s depict early pioneers, buildings, businesses, entrepreneurs, snow storms, harvesting and families. A few are mystery photos- stop in and help the staff identify them.

Âll five towns — Åvon, Scotland, Springfield, Tabor and Tyndall have been represented and appreciation is extended to those individuals and families who brought photos in. Bon Homme Her-itage Museum also has a photo in the exhibit on loan from their collection.

The free exhibit can be viewed during regular business hours of Wednesday through Saturday or by appointment. Call 605-589-4050 or visit the gallery on Facebook at "Tyndall's Art & Antique Gallery."

Gayville Hall Hosts Woody Guthrie Celebration

GAYVILLE — Bob Everhart made six albums on the legendary Folkways record label that was famous for its recordings of the most important folk musicians in America, including Woody Guthrie.

Everhart and his wife Sheila join Gayville Hall's country music hosts, John and Susan McNeill, to celebrate the life and music of Woody Guthrie at 8 p.m. on Saturday, May 19, at the music hall in Gayville.

Guthrie, who was born 100 years ago this year, traveled the country during the Dirty Thirties writing and performing songs that reflected the hard times and hopes of Dust Bowl refugees and the nation.

'So Long, It's Been Good to Know You" captured the heartbreaking disruption of life that occurred for many, as did his version of "Goin' Down This Road Feelin' Bad" and others. His "This Land is Your Land" became an anthem for the common man, and his nostalgic "Oklahoma Hills Where I Was Born" celebrated his humble origins.

Bob Everhart's musical career spans more than five decades. His was one of the pioneers of the Branson musical scene, heading the early shows at Silver Dollar City. He was also the host for seven years of the widely distributed public television show he helped create, "Old Time Country Music." In the 1970s, he started the Old Time Country and Bluegrass Festival, now staged in LeMars, which draws thousands to western Iowa every year.

Gayville Hall is located at 502 Washington Street in Gayville. Call (605) 267-2859 for ticket information.

The Book Shelf 'Wallenberg' Tells Important Tale

"His Name was Raoul Wallenberg:

Courage, Rescue, and Mystery during World War II," by Louise Borden, Houghton Mifflin Company, 2012. 144 pages.

BY PAT HANSEN

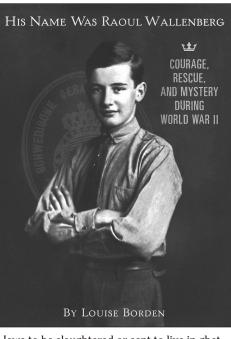

Since 9/11, we hear about lots of heros. Certainly, the responders and others who helped the victims of that attack are heros. Since then, the word "hero" is attached to many, many people in many, many circumstances. But have vou ever heard the name of another hero, Raoul Wallenberg?

I must admit — I had never heard of him. Perhaps some people closer to the World War II generation have. Wallenberg was a man who risked his life to save as many Jews as possible from the Nazis during World War II. Although his own fate is unclear, it appears he paid the ultimate price for helping others.

Wallenberg was born into a wealthy and influential family in Sweden in 1912, exactly 100 vears ago. His father never saw him, having died 3 months before Wallenberg was born. His father's father was Sweden's minister to Japan and made sure that Wallenberg was well-educated and well-traveled.

He attended college in America, learned several languages, worked in South Africa and Palestine, and failed at two businesses. He eventually became the trade representative for a Swedish business, able to travel across Europe since he was from a country that was neutral in World War II.

Meanwhile, Hitler's army was advancing across Europe; his troops were rounding up

Jews to be slaughtered or sent to live in ghettos. Wallenberg noticed and talked to numerous Jews who had been forced out of their jobs and homes and pronounced to be non-citizens.

In 1944, President Franklin D. Roosevelt set up the War Refugee Board in an attempt to assist the Jews. The board sent a man to find a diplomat from a neutral country who spoke German and Hungarian, had been to Budapest, Hungary, and who could lead others. The name Raoul Wallenberg immediately came up.

Wallenberg agreed. This was his chance to help. For six months, Wallenberg worked feverishly in Budapest to save as many Hungarian Jews as he could. He came up with the idea of issuing a form of Swedish passport to the Jews, called a schutzpass-schutz for protection and pass for passport. This schutzpass declared the holder to be under the protection of the Royal Swedish Government. It had to look formal and impressive to fool the German soldiers. And they worked — these schutzpasse saved many lives.

Wallenberg also bought or rented 32 apart-ment buildings, calling them Swedish Houses, protected by the Royal Swedish Government.

Thousands of Jews fled to these buildings. After getting a frantic phone call once, Wallenberg rushed to the Austrian border where hundreds of Jews had been taken for forced labor. After arguing with the commandant for four hours, he was able to gain the release of 80 people.

Ât one point the Hungarian government declared the schutzpasse to be null and void. Wallenberg used his connections and charm to reinstate the schutzpasse.

Toward the end of the war, thousands of Jews were forced to march to Austria and Germany in the winter. Wallenberg personally handed out blankets and hot soup and tried to rescue those with schutzpasse.

This book is filled with many more instances of Wallenberg working tirelessly to save lives. Even though this is a children's book for ages 12 and up, I think it will appeal more to adults, especially our older generation. All ages, though, should learn about the heroism of Raoul Wallenberg.

Historic Cramer-Kenyon Home In Yankton To Host Garden Party June 3

The Cramer-Kenyon Home Board of Directors invites the public to the annual Garden Party, to be held on Sunday, June 3, running from 1-4 p.m. at 509 Pine Street in Yankton.

The Eastlake style Victorian home is available to tours from Memorial Day until Labor Day, but this event focuses on the Dorothy Jencks garden, the gazebo and the beauties of the plantings lovingly tended by Board members.

Built in 1886, the Home remains a premier example of the style of its day, but is constantly enhanced by the care of the Board members and has recently added an outdoor stair lift to accommodate visitors with handicaps.

Visitors to the Sunday afternoon event will be greeted by Board members dressed in attire of the period in which the home was built and first occupied and they will be urged to enjoy lemonade and light refreshments. Board members are providing homemade cookies and treats and visitors are encouraged to enjoy some special presentations during the afternoon.

The gates will be opened on the Pine Street side and from the parking lot of the Sacred Heart School on Capital Street. At 2 p.m., a glimpse into the life of the original residents of the home will be presented, featuring Board members, and at 3 p.m., visitors will experience a dance performance by the younger members of the Academy of Dance.

SDSU To Host All-State Music Camp In June

BROOKINGS — The South Dakota State University Music Department helps young people hone their music skills with instruction by department faculty, regional music teachers and student assistants during the 45th an-nual All-State Music Camp. The camp takes place Sunday, June 10, through Friday, June 15.

Music students who have completed the seventh grade are eligible to spend the week learning music and making friends under the leadership of SDSU Director of Bands Eric Peterson. Professor Laura Diddle will direct vocal teaching and performance at the camp.

Students will perform in small ensembles as well as learn how to prepare for contests and auditions. In addition, students can take private instrumental, vocal or piano lessons throughout the week. Participants can even learn techniques of improvisation and how to use computer programs, such as Garage Band, to compose music.

Highlights of the week include a student dance on Monday, a jazz performance on Tuesday, faculty show on Wednesday and a student talent show on Thursday night. The week concludes with a concert at 3 p.m. Friday, June 15, at the Performing Arts Center.

Students choosing the inclusive fee will stay in SDSU residence halls and eat meals in the dining halls. Students staying in residence halls must check in by 2 p.m. Sunday, June 10. Those making their own lodging arrangements must check in by 4 p.m.

For more information, interested directors and students can contact Peterson at 605-688-4029 or eric.peterson@sdstate.edu.
