Into Sprint All-Star Race

CONCORD, N.C. (AP) — Dale Earnhardt Jr. knew he had a free pass into the All-Star race.

But he didn't want to get into the $1 million race

Earnhardt Races Way

Instead, Earnhardt led all 40 laps of Saturday night's Sprint Showdown to race his way into the main event at Charlotte Motor Speedway. "I feel real fortunate to have drove my way into the

All-Star race," Earnhardt said. "My fans work hard to vote, and I never assume that I'm going to win the vote. The fan support is a gift and I never take it for granted. We feel real lucky to have an opportunity to race. We're going to enjoy it having earned our way in this

Earnhardt won the All-Star race in 2000, and with it came a 10-year exemption into the event. It expired last season, and NASCAR's most popular driver used the fan vote to make the race. This time, he battled Martin Truex Jr. around the track for the first lap, surged ahead before the flagstand, and never looked back

He starts 21st in the 23-car All-Star race field. "We would love to win a million dollars, and we are pumped up," he said. "We think we have a good shot.'

He thinks he's got the Chevrolet to do it, too. He squandered the fan vote last year, finishing 14th in the field. Months later, crew chief Steve Letarte admitted to the driver he didn't bring him the best car. I don't inquire about the cars leading up to the race, I just assume we're taking what he believes to be the best car for that event," he said. "We didn't bring our best bullet to the fight. He told me this year they were going to put a little more emphasis on this event."
