Mount Marty Nurse Pinning Ceremony Held

The Mount Marty College nursing program held a Pinning Ceremony for May and December graduating nursing students on Friday, May 11, in the college's Marian Auditorium.

Established in 1986, Mount Marty's Pinning Ceremony acknowledges the achievement of the graduating seniors and their transition from a student role to a professional role. The nurse's pin represents the philosophy of the school and of the nursing program, and its presentation signifies a sending forth or commissioning of the students to begin their nursing careers as graduates of MMC.

Tradition defines that the nursing pin is unique to the nursing program from which the student graduates. In the past, a nurse's cap and pin represented the school from which he or she attended. Today, Mount Marty's pin remains as the lone symbol of their education.

Each element of the MMC nursing pin represents an aspect of the nurse's dedication.

Mount Marty's pin is a black shield on gold with a white cross embedded on the shield. The modified Benedictine cross represents a crossroads of ideas and also depicts the ultimate aim of the college: to form persons in the Spirit of Christ with apostolic zeal for the world-wide work of restoring all things for Christ.

Mount Marty College Nursing Program acknowledges this year's May nursing graduates: April Barrett, Vermillion; Jacqueline Barritt, Norfolk, Neb.; Emily Bartunek, Avon; Amanda Beehler, Delmont; Kathryn Breuer, Madison; Brittany Bruns, Elko, Nev.; Jennifer Duff, Clearwater, Neb.; James Fillaus, Yankton; Rachel Frickel, Atkinson, Neb.; Kristen Grassa, Tea; Theresa Hendrickson, Flandreau; Jenna Hernandez Lucas, Mission; Jennifer Jerdee, Sioux City, Iowa; Jodi Johnson, Oxford, Neb.; Jessica Jurgensen, Vermillion; Kaylea Karst, Castlewood; Emily Kelley, Nor-

Is It Necessary To Repair That Hail Damage?

BY TOM AND RAY MAGLIOZZI
 King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Dear Tom and Ray:

We have two cars that got dinged up pretty badly in a recent hailstorm. Although none of the dents actually cracked the surface paint, our insurance company generously gave us $5,000 for each car to replace the roof, trunk and hood, and to repair the doors and fenders. What we do with the money is up to us. We suspect that $5,000 is more than one of the cars, a 2005 Toyota Echo that cost us $12,000 new, is worth. Other than resale value, which we do not care about since we intend to keep the cars for many years, is there any reason to actually make these repairs? Do the dents affect the structural integrity of the panels, and hence, perhaps, our safety? Will bad things happen later if we don't fix the dents now? — Daniel

RAY: No, nothing bad will happen, Daniel. If you don't care how the car looks, or how much appeal it has to a potential buyer, then there's no reason to fix the dents.

TOM: If the hail had broken the paint, then the paint eventually would start to flake off, and the cars would start to rust. That eventually would create a safety issue — if it started to rust through — not to mention a "breeze" issue. But since the paint surface is intact, you can just keep driving it.

RAY: And there may even be advantages to leaving it like that.

First of all, you'll never have to worry about it getting dinged in a parking lot.

TOM: You'll always be able to find your car in a stadium lot full of similar cars.

RAY: And it may even drive straighter. Hey, it works for golf balls!

UNIVERSITY OF NEBRASKA

LINCOLN, Neb. — University of Nebraska Medical Center students are doing summer rotations with health professionals across Nebraska as part of their health care education requirements. The rotations are part of the UNMC Rural Health Education Network (RHEN), an innovative program developed to help address the shortage of health professionals in rural Nebraska.

The students represent the College of Medicine, College of Pharmacy, and the School of Allied Health Professions.

The RHEN program was developed to expose students to a rural health setting with the idea that if students receive their training in a rural area, the chances are greater they may consider returning to a rural area once they complete their training.

Nebraska's Area Health Education Centers support students during UNMC rural rotations by integrating them into the community during their rotation. AHECs are community-based programs that work with community and academic partners to address the health care work force needs of medically underserved communities through a variety of activities such as continuing education for providers, pipeline development for K-12 students, and other community-oriented programs.

For more information, call your local Area Health Education Center (AHEC) office: Central Nebraska AHEC, Grand Island (308) 385-5074; Northern Nebraska AHEC, Norfolk (402) 644-7256; and Nebraska Panhandle AHEC, Scottsbluff (308) 635-6713.
