Event

clude: Keith Urban tickets, University of South Dakota football tickets in the president's skybox, MMC Lancer Club membership, sailboat ride, scenic flying tour, Newton Fork Ranch stay, Dave Tunge photography, Wild Water West tickets and VIP CookieWalk access.

The band Poker Alice will perform toward the end of the event to finish off the night.

"I think it's going to be a really fun event," Scheve said. "We have some great auction items available. And Poker Alice has a great following of fans, so we're excited to have them back this year."

During the celebration, the RiverWalk committee also will present the 2013 People's Choice Award for the sculpture that received the most votes during the previous season. This year's winner is Christopher Powell of Colorado for his "Flight of the Dragonfly."

"It was a very positive boost for me," Powell said about the honor. "I wasn't expecting anything out of that piece, and the fact that it won the People's Choice award was super positive for me. I've been telling everybody about it."

The artist added he has been impressed by Yankton's RiverWalk and has enjoyed being involved with the project.

"I like the way it's presented," he said. "It's something I'm really enthused about."

In addition to celebrating both the past and upcoming seasons of RiverWalk, Friday's event also will serve as a fundraiser for the non-profit organization. Money raised will go back into the project and be used for artist stipends, infrastructure costs, insurance and marketing, Scheve said.

"We need to be able to raise funds so that we can continue to bring public art to the community," she said.

Tickets for "RiverWalk Mixes Music With Art" can be purchased at South Dakota Magazine, the Yankton Chamber and Visitors Center or online at www.yanktonriverwalk.org. "It's a great opportunity to celebrate art, celebrate the project, meet the artists that have been participating in the program and just to have fun," Scheve said.

Plot

ror attack, and that's why law enforcement moved quickly to execute the search warrant on Friday to arrest Mr. Rogers," FBI spokesman Kyle Loven said Monday.

He said the investigation is ongoing, and agents are looking at the case as one of domestic terrorism.

Loven said the investigation prohibits him from getting into details about Rogers' target, or his possible political or religious views, but he said the FBI is confident in calling this a "terror" situation. He also said the alleged target was believed to be in Montevideo, a city of about 5,000 people about 130 miles west of Minneapolis.

"We had information which indicated that Mr. Rogers was involved in a plot to conduct terror activities in and around the Montevideo area," he said. He declined to say whether Rogers was believed to be acting alone or as part of a group, or if other arrests were expected.

Montevideo Police Chief Adam Christopher said a homemade sign in front of the mobile home that bore the letters "BSM" refers to a local anti-government militia group called the Black Snake Militia, which the Rogers family started.

"That is not a large scale, nationwide group, as far as I know," Christopher said. "I think it's kind of them, and their family, and a few of their friends."

Mark Pitcavage, who researches militias for the Anti-Defamation League, said the Black Snake Militia is a movement that has slowly grown from about 50 active groups around the U.S. a few years ago to more than 260 small groups today.

Pitcavage said there are "a whole lot of little militia cells out there with 6-8 people in there, which is what this seems to be. ... It's teeny tiny, it's probably a group of like-minded friends who believe some of the same things."

Rogers' father, Jeff Rogers, told KMSP-TV his son doesn't own any guns, and the guns in the home belonged to him. He said his son is not a terrorist.

"He was not out to bomb nobody and I have no clue where the hell that came from," Jeff Rogers said. "I have no idea of who the hell he'd even be targeting. He's not that kind of a person. I can guarantee you that."

Rogers appeared in court Monday wearing a construction company T-shirt, baggy pants, and work boots. He answered "yes sir" and "no sir" to questions from U.S. Magistrate Tony Leung, who ordered him held pending a detention hearing Wednesday, citing "serious concerns."

Rogers was appointed a federal defender, but an attorney was not immediately assigned. Defendants do not typically enter pleas during initial appearances and he made no statement about the case to the court.

In a news release Monday, the FBI said the alleged terror plot was discovered through analysis of intelligence gathered by local, state and federal authorities.

"Cooperation between the FBI and its federal, state, and local partners enabled law enforcement to prevent a potential tragedy in Montevideo," Christopher Warrenner, the special agent in charge of the FBI office in Minneapolis, said in the statement.

According to a federal affidavit, FBI agents from the domestic terrorism squad searched the mobile home in Montevideo and discovered Molotov cocktails, suspected pipe bombs and firearms. The affidavit said Buford was there at the time, and one firearm recovered from the residence was a Romanian AKM assault rifle.

In an interview with authorities, Rogers admitted firing the weapon on two separate occasions at a gun range in Granite Falls, the affidavit said. Rogers has a 2011 conviction for felony burglary and is not allowed to have a firearm.

Dustin Rathbun, who lives next door, said he and other neighbors noticed a few months ago that the Rogers family was flying an upside-down flag from the side of their home. He said the owners of the park asked them to take it down.
