year-old daughter.

At a news conference, authorities would not discuss the circumstances of the women's kidnappings or give further details about their ordeals. But City Councilman Brian Cummins said: "We know that the victims have confirmed miscarriages, but with who, how many and what conditions we don't know."

"It sounds pretty gruesome," he added.

Castro was in custody Wednesday and couldn't be reached for comment. A brother-in-law has said the family was shocked after hearing about the women at the home.

Neighbors said that over the years, Castro took part in the search for one of the women, Gina DeJesus, helped pass out fliers, performed music at a fundraiser for her and attended a candlelight vigil, at which he comforted her mother.

None of the women said anything that indicated Castro's brothers, Pedro Castro, 54, and Onil Castro, 50, were involved, Tomba said.

"Ariel kept everyone at a distance," he said.

A court hearing for Ariel Castro was set for Thursday morning.

The deputy chief also said there was no evidence to indicate any of the women had been outside without clothes, despite claims from a neighbor who said a naked woman was seen crawling around the backyard.

Cleveland police have disputed claims by neighbors that officers had been called to the house before for suspicious circumstances. They said nothing in their records supports that.

two satellite campuses outside of Yankton that offer opportunities for students was also intriguing to me."

Kalsow said one of the biggest differences between MMC and Buena Vista is the emphasis Buena Vista places on its satellite campuses. She added that people at Mount Marty have a sense of who they are, and the grounding principles are clear at the college.

She noted that one of the things she will do before she gets on campus is understanding the education requirements for South Dakota and how they compare to those in Iowa.

Kalsow added that the other programs are similar to what she's been working with at Buena Vista and are not as much of a challenge for her as the health care programs are.

"After 14 years at Buena Vista, which is also my alma mater, part of me thought I might stay there until I retired, but this seemed like the right opportunity for me," she said. "After I applied and interviewed, it wasn't as hard to leave Buena Vista because I was impressed with the people at Mount Marty."

She added that she is focused on getting results by building relationships, and said she deeply cares about the culture of an organization and how it does business.

"I want to get to know the individuals and build relationships with everyone at MMC, including having one-on-one time with people," Kalsow said. "I care about what we do and how we go about making decisions and how we include people in the decision-making process. I want to find out what is happening at MMC currently, the strengths of the college and will get to do some strategic planning while at MMC."

Children's Book Week At Library Is May 13-19

The Yankton Community Library, 515 Walnut, invites children and their families to the library during Children's Book Week, May 13-19. Children's Book Week is the annual celebration of books and the joy of reading for young people.

Children that visit during this special week will have the opportunity to register to win a book. Stop in and check out a stack of books to read and enter the drawing.

In addition, there will be a special reading chair set up in the children's area. Sign up to read a children's book to your child or to read a selection of children's literature yourself. You can call the library, 668-5275, to choose your time slot.

Children's Book Week originated in the belief that children's books and literacy are life-changers.

In 1913, Franklin K. Matthews, the librarian of the Boy Scouts of America, began touring the country to promote higher standards in children's books. He proposed creating a Children's Book Week, which would be supported by all interested groups: publishers, booksellers, and librarians.

For more information, call the library at 605-668-5276.
