Alford Buyout Agreement To Net New Mexico $625K

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) -The University of New Mexico says it has reached an agreement in principal with former basketball coach Steve Alford over his buyout.

Alford said in April he was willing to pay a $200,000 buyout for leaving New Mexico to take the job at UCLA, but he wouldn't pay the $1 million payment that New Mexico wanted.

The dispute stemmed from the timing of his announcement and a term sheet he had signed just weeks before agreeing to a new 10year contract with New Mexico that included a $1 million buyout.

Under the agreement announced Friday, the net benefit of the buyout will be $625,000. That includes a $300,000 payment and certain bonuses Alford had agreed to forego.

Five Coyotes Named To Academic All-League Track Teams

VERMILLION - Five South Dakota track and field student-athletes were named to the Summit League's Outdoor Track and Field Academic All-League Teams in a league release on Thursday. The teams were voted on by each institution's faculty athletics representatives and sports information directors.

Three members of USD's men's team made the list, with junior Jeff Mettler, sophomore Brant Haase and senior Brandon Kovash earning the honor.

Alexa Duling and Emily Grove were named to the women's team. Duling was also named the recipient of the NCAA Walter Byers Scholarship last week.

To be eligible for the Academic All-League Team, student-athletes must at least have a cumulative GPA of 3.3 (on a 4.0 scale), completed one full academic year at their current institution and competed in 50 percent of their team's competitions. The teams are made up of the 10 members receiving the most votes with all ties standing.

Semipro Football Team Being Formed In Fargo

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — A man who owns a semipro foot-ball team in Minnesota that plays games in the spring is starting a team in Fargo-Moorhead that will play in the fall.

James Kern owns the Brainerd (Minn.) Lumberiacks. who play in the Midwest Premier Football League. He tells The Forum newspaper (http://bit.ly/111RTj6) that the team he is forming in Fargo-Moorhead will be an extension of the Lumberjacks and will play in the United National Football League.

Players have to be at least 18 years old and are respon-sible for their own health insurance. Players don't get paid and have to buy their own equipment.

Kern says the new team has more than 40 players but is looking for more to play a 10-game schedule starting Aug.

would be probably pretty easy to say that the ball down the line would have been a double, so two runs score and there are runners on second and third. It would not be as easy to say it might have been a triple.

In a similar situation, with runners on first and second, would anyone be awarded home if the ball landed in front of the left fielder?

'If you don't have a good confidence level there," McArtor said, "it might be a case where you just move them up one base.'

A simpler scenario occurs if a fair-ball call is changed to foul: the runners would return to the base they previously occupied. 'Kind of a do-over," McArtor said. Replay applies only on line calls where the ball lands on the > Cedar Catholic sophomore Alli Walter qualified for finals in both the 100 and the 200. Laurel-Concord-Coleridge sophomore Ellie Arduser bounced back from a false start in the 100 prelims to qualify third in the 200.

The top finisher among area boys in Class C on Friday was Crofton junior Alex Janssen, who finished fourth with a 10:02.03 in the 3200.

"I tried to stick with the leaders," he said. "We had nice weather and good competition. When you get those, you don't fly beyond first or third base. A ball that bounces in front of the base and goes over the bag is not reviewable.

Infield line calls aren't subject to review, McArtor said, because it would be impossible to judge where runners would end up.

"If you change that to fair when a third baseman quits on the ball, how do you know he wouldn't have thrown (the runner) out at first base?" McArtor said. "Once an umpire would call foul ball on it and the defense stops playing on it, those are the balls that the defense might have been able to get outs on.'

Major League Baseball is considering expanding replay, possibly as soon as next year, to include fair and foul calls and balls that are caught or trapped.

McArtor said he expects the further expansion of video review to be considered at future College World Series. He said the rules committee chose to make outfield line calls eligible for review because there had been a couple of instances in recent years where wrong calls in those outcome of CWS games.

"There are certainly a lot of plays that come up," McArtor said, "and there always is a decision to be made on how far you want to carry instant replay in order to get things right versus being a distraction to the game."

Both the boys and girls are looking to carry Friday's momentum into today, Wilken said.

"They're going in with a lot of confidence," he said. "I think after (Friday), they realized, 'Hey, we belong here.'

The best point showing among area teams came from the Hartington boys, who finished second in the 3200 relay and saw senior Adam Hochstein place third in the 3200 to score 14 points, good enough for fifth.

The Wildcats finished the 3200 relay in 8:18.11, beating the school record they had set earlier this season.

We had set the school record at both conference and districts," said Hochstein, who anchored the 3200 relay finish. "They we came in here and beat it by six seconds."

Junior Pat Wortmann got the Wildcats off to a good start in the 3200 relay, but it may have cost him later in the day. Wortmann, who is scheduled to run the 1600 and 3200 for Hartington today, withdrew from the 3200 three laps into the race.

'The big goal is to win the (team) championship, so you have to stay focused on that,' Hochstein said. "It sucked that Pat was injured and walked off, but he wants to win the 800 (today) so he's resting and healing now."

Hochstein battled to a third place finish in the 3200 with a 10:13.45.
