

Videos Increase Healthcare WorkForce Awareness

Six teams of South Dakota high school students earned cash prizes with their originality in telling the story of the state's healthcare workforce shortage and the promotion of those careers. Their videos will be posted online in an effort to educate their peers about the state's workforce needs and the possibilities available with healthcare careers.

The contest is sponsored by the South Dakota Association of Healthcare Organizations, the South Dakota Healthcare Workforce Center and Yankton Rural AHEC. Entries focused on one of two categories: healthcare workforce shortage in South Dakota or the promotion of healthcare careers.

Winners in the workforce shortage category are:

- First — Aberdeen team of: Amber Bellikka, Jessica Foster, Shayle Finnesand, Chance Glaser, Carly Hubert, Paige Hoffmann, Emily Miller, Alexis Rath, Brandon Ronning, Hailey Sumption and Kaitlyn Weisenburger;

- Second — Madison team of: Brendon Klopff and Erin LeMair;

- Third — Highmore team of: Tristan Ashdown, Sydney Cowan, Brady LaMont, Bennett Peterson and McKenzie Zilverberg.

Winners in the career promotion category are:

- First — Beresford team of: Maddie Antonson, Megan Dahlin, Hannah Hepler and Tiffany Hoffman;

- Second — Beresford team of: Shelby Bickett, Lexi DeLay, Devin Erlandson and

Arianna Lyle;

- Third — Beresford team of: Alexandra Johnsen, Bailey Nelson, Abigail Wiebers and Christian Wilson.

Videos featured careers such as nursing, childlife specialists along with physical therapy. One team took a documentary approach to the healthcare workforce shortage and others a more humorous delivery to get their peers' attention. The contest aims to bring a greater awareness to high school students, their peers and others about the demand for healthcare workers in the state.

"The students' work helps us to educate the public and to increase awareness of the need for healthcare workers in our state," said Sandy Viau-Williams, executive director of Yankton Rural AHEC.

Videos were judged on four criteria: educational value, entertainment value, originality and content. Videos were less than 5 minutes in length. They are posted at www.yrahec.org. First place team members in both categories shared a $750 prize, second place finishers received $500 and third, $250.

In the decade leading up to 2020, more than 8,000 new healthcare workers will be needed in South Dakota. There will be a 17 percent decrease in high school graduates between 2002 and 2018. By the year 2025, the number of elderly in South Dakota will double. This creates a challenging situation to meet potential growing demand with a declining supply of workers.

Students Earn Prizes At History Conference

VERMILLION — Eight undergraduate students of history received awards during the 49th annual Student History Conference at the University of South Dakota on April 24.

Thirty-one graduate and undergraduate students from six colleges and universities throughout the region presented or commented on papers. The winning authors earned certificates and book awards.

Michael Hoff, Hixon-Lied Professor of Art History at the University of Nebraska, Lincoln, delivered the plenary address, "Pirates and Romans: Ancient Cities and Rough Cilicia."

The conference was sponsored by the USD history department and the local chapter of Phi Alpha Theta, the national honor society in history.

The categories and winners:

- Premodern History — Sam Reuland, University of South Dakota: "The Battle of Salamis: How Themistocles and Athenian Politics Influenced Tactics"

- Twentieth Century (tie for first place) — Katherine Feller, University of South Dakota: "The Treaty of Versailles: Historiography and Historical Themes"; Zoey Reisdorf, Buena Vista University: "Irrational Behavior or a Rational Reaction?: The Origins of North Korean-South Korean Relations, 1945-1953"

- U.S. History — Jason W. Rogers, Creighton University: "Policy, Prejudice, and Protest: A New Look into the History of the 477th Bombardment Group"

- Civil War (tie for first place) — Sonia Hernandez, University of South Dakota: "Abraham Lincoln's Liberty"; Hilary van Noort, Creighton University: "Fallen Soldiers, Grieving Fathers, and Failed Systems: The Struggle to Create the U.S. Ambulance Corps During the Civil War"

Fix For Car Shake May Be Simple

BY TOM AND RAY MAGLIOZZI
King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Dear Tom and Ray:

I have a 2006 Toyota Corolla with 60,000 miles. I love the car. It's never given me any problems, except this one: It has an annoying vibration that occurs exclusively when I'm stopped with the brake engaged. If I'm stopped at a light and I put the car in park, the vibration goes away. My mechanic of more than 36 years (he's excellent) is stumped. He's replaced two motor mounts that he thought were causing the problem. When the vibration didn't go away, he replaced a third motor mount. But it's still vibrating. Any thoughts on what's causing this and how to fix it? — Jillian

TOM: The motor mount was a good guess. Usually it's the big one in front that breaks and causes this kind of vibration.

RAY: But he's replaced all three motor mounts now. So I'm going to go out on a limb and say that the motor mounts are not the problem.

TOM: That's why you wrote to us, Jillian — for that kind of keen analysis, right?

RAY: Actually, I'm guessing you have the same problem that we saw recently in the shop.

TOM: It also was a Corolla. Everything under the sun had been tried to stop it from vibrating.

RAY: I had the car out for a test drive, and I was stopped at a light. The thing was shaking and buzzing, and for some reason, I decided to pop the hood release. And the vibration stopped.

TOM: Turned out the hood was vibrating.

RAY: There are two little "bumpers" that stick up from the radiator support under the hood. Their job is to push up against the underside of the hood when it's closed and keep it from vibrating. I guess they had worn down, and they weren't doing their job anymore.

TOM: They're actually adjustable, so all we had to do was back them out a few turns, close the hood and voila! We charged the lady 450 bucks and gave her the car back.

RAY: No, it was a five-minute job. So we charged her only $425. But I'm guessing that's what's wrong with your car, Jillian. Have your mechanic check it out, and let us know.

What is the most cost-effective way to buy a car? Tom and Ray hash it all out in their pamphlet "Should I Buy, Lease, or Steal My Next Car?" Send $4.75 (check or money order) to Next Car, P.O. Box 536475, Orlando, FL 32853-6475.
