Neb. DHHS Focusing On Children's Mental Health

LINCOLN, Neb. — More than 45 percent of teens ages 13-18 have experienced a mental health problem, and more than 20 percent have experienced a severe disorder, according to the Division of Behavioral Health at the Nebraska Department of Health and Human Services.

"It's hard sometimes for parents to know if what they are seeing is normal behavior, a difficult moment or something more unusual," said Scot L. Adams, director. "There are questions that every parent can ask themselves, if they want to know whether their child needs help."

Does my child ...
• Often seem sad, tired, restless or out of sorts?
• Spend a lot of time alone?
• Have low self-esteem?
• Have trouble getting along with family, friends and peers?
• Have frequent outbursts of shouting, complaining or crying?

- Have trouble performing or behaving in school?
- Show sudden changes in eating patterns?
- Sleep too much or not enough?
- Have trouble paying attention or concentrating on tasks like homework?
- Seem to have lost interest in hobbies like music or sports?
- Show signs of using drugs and/or alcohol?
- Talk about death or suicide?

According to the federal Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, if the answers to four or more of these questions is yes, and these behaviors last longer than two weeks, parents should consider getting professional help for their child.

Parents can contact the Nebraska Family Helpline, a free, confidential resource for parents who have questions regarding their child's behavior, 1-888-866-8660. Trained operators are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week. They can assess immediate safety needs, identify the potential level of a behavioral health crisis, make recommendations or referrals to appropriate resources, and help callers connect to emergency resources or providers. The Helpline is supervised by licensed behavioral health professionals.

Parents can also use the Nebraska Network of Care <www.dhhs.ne.gov/NetworkOfCare> to find local resources about behavioral health services.

"Being a teen can be tough," Adams said, "but especially so for kids with behavioral health challenges. Getting help can be the right decision."

Children's Mental Health Awareness day is May 8.

ON THIS DATE

75 YEARS AGO

Friday, May 5, 1939
• Yankton High School musicians were leading with 10 first division ratings today as the annual contest of the South Dakota High School Music Association moved into its second day of competition.
• Yankton's last delegation to the state music contest included 102 contestants, directors and supporters, will leave this city tonight at 11:30 via special train over the Milwaukee railroad bound for Aberdeen where the three day program will be completed tomorrow night with two grand concerts.

50 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, May 5, 1964
• Capt. Charles W. Broz, Wagner, will receive one of the Air Force's top safety awards in Pentagon ceremonies Thursday. Capt. Broz has been selected as 1963 recipient of the Korean Kolligan Jr. trophy for his performance during an in-flight emergency off Goose Bay, Labrador.

• The strength of the 115th Signal Co. (Spt.), Yankton-Vermilion unit of the South Dakota National Guard has reached four officers and 150 enlisted men, making this the largest unit in South Dakota in terms of assigned personnel.

25 YEARS AGO

Friday, May 5, 1989
• The Elks Club honored the winners of the local Hoop shoot contest with special certificates. They were Jed Hageman and Jody Haag, both of Wausa, Neb.; T.J. Risty, Scotland; Lona Christensen, Wakonda; Amy Olson, Viborg; and Jimmy Pesek, Yankton.
• The Library restaurant on the corner of Capital and Fourth Streets in Yankton is reopening June 1 as Recuerdo de Mexico.

RC&D To Host Area Shredding Events

On May 8-9, the Northeast Nebraska Resource Conservation & Development (RC&D) Council will be hosting six shredding events for sensitive documents. These are being held to assist citizens in disposing of confidential files safely, reducing the potential for identity theft and to support recycling.

Locations and host sites for these shredding events are:
• Thursday, May 8, at the Public Library, Orchard, 8-10 a.m., Midwest Bank, Creighton, 10:45 a.m.-12:45 p.m., and Midwest Bank, Plainview, 1:30-3:30 p.m.;
• Friday, May 9, at the Lewis & Clark NRD office in Hartington, 8-10 a.m., at the Ponca Co-op, 11 a.m.-1 p.m., and the Wayne County Courthouse, north parking lot, 2-4 p.m.

Security Shredding of Laurel will be the contractor. On-site, their truck will pulverize all material and then take it back to their facility where it will be baled and shipped directly to a paper mill for recycling. This small business has been serving the needs of the area since 2003. Security Shredding guarantees that confidential information stays that way.

The types of material appropriate to shred include Financial Records, Maps and Blueprints, Payroll Records, Personnel Files, Inventory Lists, Legal Documents, Confidential Correspondence, Cancelled Checks, Customer Lists, Account/Records/Ledgers, Fax Records, Information on Competitors, Invoices, Computer Printouts, Price Lists, and Medical Records. Newspapers, cardboard and magazines are not accepted. These events are for sensitive documents only.

There will be a suggested donation for shredding, depending on the amount of material brought in.

For more information about this effort or any of the RC&D's programs and services, contact the office at 402-582-4866 or email northeastrcd@plvwtelco.net.

'Books Are Fun' Book/Gift Fair May 8

City

that it wants to build the fund up to be used as an economic development "war chest." However, it also gives the commission a source of funding for unforeseen items that come along during the course of the year. For example, decisions earlier this year to fund projects related to Ribfest were possible because of the ability to tap the BBB fund.

Nelson suggested the option as a possible permanent change in how certain agencies will be funded by the city.

"Do we need to think about not funding some of those from our general fund so we have a little bit of leeway?" she asked.
In addition to the outside agencies, which include the Yankton County Historical Society, Lewis and Clark Behavioral Health and Yankton Transit, contractual services provided by Yankton Area Progressive Growth were also included in the discussion. The city budgeted $155,827 for the economic development agency in 2014.

The commission has to be realistic given the circumstances, Commissioner David Knoff said.

"Why would we cut back on city improvements but not cut back on what we're giving outside agencies?" he asked. "What would the logic of that be?"

Nelson added, "When we're cutting things like squad cars, we need to look at other options."

Permanently funding some agencies out of the BBB fund could be "dangerous," Mayor

Nancy Wenande said. That would be due, in part, to the fact that there is flexibility in that budget, so there may be a perception that agencies could request more money.

However, she added that the city has a legitimate interest in assisting many, if not all, of the entities.

The way the budgeting process has tended to work is that agencies that received funding in the past get an allocation for the next year. The city does have an application process through which any agency can make a request.

"(If we're going to fund them every year), then let's get it on as a permanent budget item," Knoff said. "Because we're saying, every year people will apply and we'll make a decision. Every year, we're going to decide that those who have already gotten money are going to get money — it's just how much."

Commissioner Brad Woerner agreed.

"We talk tough, but every year we just fund everybody we've funded before," he said. "I've had the same thought in my mind every year: Why are we doing this? Make them earn their money, for lack of a better phrase. Then you sit there and go, 'I don't want the three dozen people in this room mad at me.' We spend more time on the outside agency funding than we do on just about everything else in the budget put together. We are discouraging people from asking for money, because all we do is give the same group the same amount of money every year."

The commission should develop a strategic plan for funding outside agencies, suggested Commissioner Brooke Blaaid.
