

■ TRAILS

around Yankton and through the Lewis and Clark Recreation Area. It can carry you from Paddlewheel Point on the east edge of Yankton to the Summit Activities Center on the city's north end, and out to the Gavins Point Dam, the Hobie Cat and Midway beaches, and numerous other points of interest. Along the way, you'll find the Auld-Brokaw Trail, which carries you through the heart of Yankton along Marne Creek; the Lewis and Clark Lake Trail; the Toe Road/Lake Yankton Prairie Trail and much more.

The trails range from the paved to the primitive. Some can accommodate hikers only, while others can handle all sorts of pedestrian traffic.

There's also the Missouri National Recreational River Water Trail, a water trail that runs from below Gavins Point Dam west of Yankton down to Sioux City, Iowa. This 79-mile trail covers the Missouri National Recreational River down to Ponca, Neb., plus the extended reach from Ponca to Sioux City. For more information, visit www.mnr-watertrail.com.
