Yankton Toys For Kids Making Its List

Community wide agencies, organizations, and volunteers are working together to make the holidays brighter this year through the annual Yankton Toys for Kids program.
The Yankton Toys for Kids wish list is being compiled for children in need, ages 0-18, who live in Yankton County. A release form and a wish list are to be completed and returned by Nov. 9 and are available at Head Start, County Health Office, Contact Center, S.D. Dept. of Labor, Economic Assistance, and Division of Child Protection. An agency referral is required to qualify for the Yankton Toys for Kids program.
Donations of new, unwrapped toys, appropriate for ages 0 to 18, are being collected now through Saturday, Dec. 15, and can be dropped off at Yankton Motors on Highway 50 or, starting after Thanksgiving, at the Yankton Mall.
Don't have time to shop for a toy? Toys for Kids can do the shopping for you. Caring neighbors are helping Santa Claus make the holidays special for area children. Cash donations are accepted to fill in where needs are not met and ensure that every referred child receives a toy. Make checks payable to Toys for Kids.
You may also "adopt a family" through the Yankton Toys for Kids Adoption Program, which enables businesses, community members or organizations to provide clothing, food and gifts to families experiencing tough times. Volunteer "adopters" are paired with a local family in need and provided with ages, clothing sizes and special requests.
Last year, the Yankton Toys for Kids program served more than 350 children. This year officials anticipate an increased need.
If you would like more information on the Yankton Toys for Kids program, call the United Way & Volunteer Services' Office at (605) 665-6766.

Daylight Savings Time

Remember To Change Clock, Check Batteries

PIERRE — State Fire Marshal Paul Merriman plans to use part of the hour he'll gain when Daylight Saving Time ends this weekend to check the smoke-alarm batteries at his home. He encourages everyone else to do the same thing.
Daylight Saving Time ends on Sunday, Nov. 4. That's when clocks are set back an hour. Merriman suggests state residents mark the change by not only moving their clocks back but also checking the batteries in their smoke alarms and carbon monoxide detectors.
"This clock-change weekend is a good reminder to make sure your detectors are in working order," Merriman said. "A majority of home fire deaths could be prevented if all homes had working smoke detectors. Some statistics say up to 80 percent of child deaths in fires occur in homes without working smoke alarms. Please make sure your family doesn't become part of that statistic."

If you don't have smoke detectors in your home, Merriman recommends you install them. Smoke detectors have a test button. When the button is pressed, the detector should make a sound. If it doesn't, the batteries need to be changed. If that doesn't work, it's time to replace the detector.
Merriman offers these additional guidelines for keeping you and your family safe from fire.
• At least once a month, press the test button to check your detector.

• For maximum protection, install smoke detectors on every level of your home.
• Smoke detectors lose sensitivity over time and should be replaced periodically. Smoke detectors are usually good for about 10 years.
• Periodically clean smoke detectors using a vacuum attachment. This removes particles that could interfere with the detector's proper operation.
• Finally, brush up on your family's emergency exit plan. If your family doesn't have a plan, this is an ideal time to develop one.

pects of it and also helping authors and artists refine the work they've submitted," she said.
McKayla Thieman said she enjoys reading each work that is submitted and getting to select items for publication.
Press Days, which was held in Brookings last week, features about 25 other school districts from across the state. The program has a keynote speaker and several mini-sessions, including photography, writing and graphics. There is also lunch provided and the awards presentation at the end of the day.
"I took two students and Teri Mandel (advisor of the newspaper) took two students and they said they liked the sessions," Mikkelsen said. "As an extracurricular activity, they are in it because they like writing, photography and design. They like going to those sessions and hearing people that work in the field talk about those particular areas."
Hoffner said there are about 10-12 people on the magazine staff, and jobs include reading everything that comes in, deciding which gets published, selecting art and designing the magazine itself.
The magazine is typically 30-40 pages long, and features about 20 poems, essays and stories and about 14 pieces of art in each issue.

The yearbook staff is divided into smaller staff groups for categories including sports, student life, academics and activities, with each group having one staff member in charge.
"Having the yearbook a few nights a week forces you to organize your time. It forces students to be on top of things and make sure everyone is covering something each week," Mikkelsen said. "It forces students to prioritize their time and use the time they have wisely by sitting down and working to get a product done."
She added that students are always moving, and each time they meet, there is a deadline that needs to be met.
The Woksape is also an extracurricular activity, but Mandel also teaches a course on journalism that students can take.
Mikkelsen said her students work hard throughout the year on the yearbook, so it is an honor for them to be recognized.
"We spend from August until the middle of June working on the book and getting it ready for publishing," she said. "When we have people look at and judge our book and tell us that we have achieved excellence in a number of different areas, it's a wonderful way to have your work recognized and is a wonderful honor."

IMPACT

current non-profit housing developer; Steve Lindquist, the former Human Services Center administrator and current Avera McKennan vice president; Bender, who was a Human Services Center social worker before joining IMPACT; Karen Chesley, the former Yankton IMPACT director and current Sioux Falls IMPACT director; and Dennis Pfrimmer, a former Human Services Center social worker and current CEO of Capital Area Counseling.
"The program implementation was done exceedingly well, and ... the program has survived and actually prospered despite several changes in location and in administration," Stanage said.
IMPACT has served 157 clients in Yankton since Nov. 2, 1992.
The program employs professionals with social work, psychology, nursing, occupational therapy, psychology and psychiatry expertise to ensure the safety of its clients and the community in which they live.
"We try to work with the individual on all the issues they have, whether that's financial management, medical follow-along, psychiatric treatment or case management," Bender said. "We also do a fair amount of trying to reconnect people with past natural support systems like families. We've been pretty successful over the years in helping people reconnect with families. That's always a real positive thing."
Prior to getting services from IMPACT, some clients had been admitted to the Human Services Center dozens of times, according to Bender.
"Now they have gone for years, sometimes decades, without having to be re-admitted for in-patient treatment," he said. "An important aspect of that is it significantly improves their quality of life. It is also a cost savings for taxpayers."
Among the things that Bender is most proud of after 20 years with IMPACT is the program's low staff turnover rate, its expansion of services to include clients that have personality disorders and the progress it has allowed people to make in their lives.
Looking toward the future, Bender has concerns about the financial support IMPACT depends upon from various sources. During the last fiscal year, it endured approximately a 5 percent reduction in funding.
"We adapted," he stated. "We have a very keen eye for cost, expense, value and hard work. I'm very proud to work with a group like that."
Most of all, Bender said he is appreciative of the support Yankton provides for IMPACT and its clients.
"It has been incredible to watch the level of acceptance and care from the community," he stated.
