Tithing Without Telling Partner

BY DAVE RAMSEY

Dear Dave,
I'm a Christian, but my husband is not. However, we still budget a small amount to give to the church. I started working a part-time job recently, and would like to tithe on this income. Is it okay to do this without telling him? —Christine

Dear Christine,
No, it's not. Do you really think you'd be honoring God by tithing on this income while at the same time creating a situation where you're dishonoring your husband by hiding things from him? That's not a good idea.
Your husband has already shown respect for your beliefs with his agreement to make tithing a part of your budget. I think you should return that respect and let him know you'd like to give a portion of your new income. Besides, you wouldn't be tithing out of his income in a situation like this. It would just be a small portion of the new, additional income you're generating.
Remember, too, that not tithing isn't a sin. God doesn't love you more when you tithe, and it's not a salvation issue. He wants us to be givers because he knows what it does for us on the inside. It makes us a little more

Dave
RAMSEY

Christ-like when we put the wants and needs of others ahead of our own.
So sit down with your husband and explain your feelings on the issue. He doesn't sound like an unreasonable guy. But regardless, you shouldn't deceive someone just because you don't see eye to eye on everything.
—Dave

found the right thing. There are lots of people out there with big-time résumés who have been forced to go part-time in today's job market. It's not unusual right now for UPS or FedEx managers to see people with your level of education wanting to throw boxes. Whether they're trying to get out of debt or they're unemployed or underemployed, it's just part of the economic strain the country's going through at the moment.
I really like your drive, though, and the fact that you're actively trying to find a solution to your problem tells me that you're the kind of person who won't be denied. Because of this, I think some really good things will begin to happen for you in the coming weeks and months. But let's not go down the path of omitting things from your résumé. Think about what would happen if your boss discovered you hadn't truthfully represented yourself and your background? I know if it were me, I'd have to wonder if I could really trust someone who did that. —Dave

Dear Dave,
I lost my job a couple of weeks ago, and I'm having a tough time finding part-time work to bridge the gap until another position comes along. I've got a masters' degree, and I've been wondering if that's hurting my chances in the interim. I'm really eager to stay on track paying off my debts. Should I dumb down my résumé?
—Jamie

Dear Jamie,
Honestly, if it's only been a couple of weeks, I think you probably just haven't

Community Connections

Give, Advocate, Volunteer: Live United

BY PAM KETTERING

Yankton Area United Way

LIVE UNITED. When neighbors care for neighbors, when organizations work together to address an issue, when food collections are conducted for the hungry, when citizens stand up for an injustice, when people see a need for their help and they volunteer, when the United Way & Volunteer Services run their annual campaign and people share their resources, these are all examples of LIVE UNITED. To live in a community that offers an excellent quality of life to its citizens, it takes individuals, organizations, businesses, government, EVERYONE to give, advocate, and volunteer to work together.

With the holiday season rapidly approaching, GIVE is a prominent banner waving in the back of our minds. It does not take long in researching community giving options to find your niche.
On Friday, November 9, the Yankton County Toys For Kids program applications are due. Toys For Kids is available for children ages 0 - 18 that will not have presents or a "merry" holiday. Applications are available for families in need at Contact Center, County Health, Head Start and South Dakota Departments of Labor, Economic Assistance and Child Protection. An agency referral is required to qualify for the local Toys For Kids Program. It is anticipated that the number of children served will be greater than last year's 350 participants.

To complete the program for the enrolled children from age 0 - 18, there is a need for the collection of toys! Toys are needed for boys and girls of all ages and interests. It is recommended that the toys be problem solving /creative type — educational, craft kits, building pieces, books, etc. and, the more durable, the better. Donations of the new, unwrapped toys can be dropped off now at Yankton Motor Company, 3400 E. Highway 50, or after Thanksgiving at the Yankton Mall.
If your family gift exchange is getting too complicated or would like a change in your giving, there is the option of "adopting" a Toys For Kids family. You will be matched with a family experiencing tough times by an applicant's family member size, age of children, and other needs. In the past, single families, extended families, businesses of all sizes have experienced the adoption opportunity of giving. Adopting a family can exceed the gifts of toys to include clothing, food and other basic needs. Additional information for adopters includes ages of children, clothing sizes and special requests. For more information on the Toys For Kids program, call United Way & Volunteer Services at 665-6766, email unitedway@iw.net, or stop at our office at 610 W. 23rd St.

Food baskets and fruit baskets are a project of the Contact Center. They have started a collection of food and cash donations to help fill the baskets for families, shut-ins, and special needs people that apply for the program. Volunteers also assist in assembly and delivery of the baskets. Call the Contact Center at 260-4400 Extension 2 for additional information or take your donations to Yankton County Government Center at 321 W. 3rd St.
The Yankton Community Holiday Feast is Wednesday, November 21 from 4:30 - 7 p.m. at the Calvary Baptist Church, 2407 Broadway. Again, food and cash donations are needed to make this event possible. Food donations of turkey and dressing and pies are needed. The monetary donations will take care of the rest of the food that is needed. Cash donations are accepted at 1st National Bank of South Dakota, 332 Broadway. Volunteers are an essential part of this feast! Volunteers are needed to donate, prepare and serve the food, clean up detail of washing dishes and restoring the area to its previous state. Volunteers are also needed to deliver the meals to shut-ins. For additional information for volunteering or donations, call Donna Madson at 760-3170 or before Friday, November 16 to ask for the meal for shut-ins.

If you would like additional ideas for LIVE UNITED — GIVE, ADVOCATE, VOLUNTEER., contact United Way & Volunteer Services at 665-6766, unitedway@iw.net, or www.yanktonunitedway.org. We are very thankful for the opportunity to share the above information to you; however, we are truly thankful for the support all of you have given to these mentioned plus so many more programs that work to assist people in their time of need. THANK YOU!
