Election

Judging from the long early voting lines in some places and the comments made in others, the voters were more than ready to have their say.

"I watch the news all the time, and I am ready for it to be over," said Jennifer Walker, 38, of Columbus, Ohio, who said she took time off from work to attend the president's speech during the day in a show of support. "I feel like he is getting better with the economy. I don't think it's hopeless. It takes

But Bryan Dobes, 21, a University of Iowa student from suburban Chicago, voted for Romney on Monday and said unemployment and spending have been too high under Obama. "He promised a lot of hope and change, and I'm not seeing it," he said of the president.

"No retreat, no surrender," sang rock icon Bruce Springsteen, warming up Obama's crowd on a frosty morning outside the State Capitol in Madison. Wis. The Boss then boarded Air Force One for his first flight. "Pretty cool," he

Romney had Kid Rock and the Marshall Tucker Band in the wings for his late appearances in Ohio and New Hamp-

"This is it," the challenger said in a last-minute emailed request for campaign donations. "I will lead us out of this economic crisis by implementing pro-growth policies that will create 12 million new jobs. With your help, I will deliver real change and a real recovery. America will be strong again."

In his longest campaign day, Romney raced from Florida to a pair of speeches in Virginia to Ohio and then an election eve rally in New Hampshire.

Obama selected Wisconsin, Ohio and Iowa for his final campaign day, an itinerary that reflected his campaign's decision to try and erect a Midwestern firewall against Romney's challenge.

programs and how people can help. Entertainment will also be provided by contemporary Christian music artist Mark

'People can come and learn about the needs and how they can get involved, and at the same time, have a great evening and enjoy the concert," Mach said.

Schultz has been nominated for 14 Dove Awards, winning his first in 2006 for his CD/DVD, "Mark Schultz Live: A Night of Stories & Songs," which was named Long Form Music Video of the Year. He is well-known for portraying heartfelt and inspirational stories through song, such as parents praying for a sick child ("He's My Son") or his great-grandmother's sons fighting in World War II ("Letters From War"). During his appearance in Yankton, Schultz will perform songs from his latest album, "All Things Possible," which was released in September.

Mach said Schultz's music fits perfectly with KAHY's mis-

The reason we do what we do is the way God has blessed us. I think he calls us to do something more than just sit back and invest our money in the bank. I think he calls us to invest in heavenly projects," he said. "Mark's music reflects that, too. His songs reflect God's goodness in our lives and how we can go and share that with others."

Kids Against Hunger is a humanitarian food-aid organization with the mission of significantly reducing the number of hungry children in the United States and throughout the world. Its approach includes the packaging of meals by volunteers at numerous locations and the distribution of those meals to starving children and their families worldwide. The Kids Against Hunger satellite location in Yankton was formed a year ago, and since that time, the group has had hundreds of people volunteer and has packed more than 100,000 meals. A shipment of 70,000 meals was sent to Haiti last spring, with additional food going to the Yankton Sack Pack program, the Yankton Contact Center and the Rosebud Indian "We're really so grateful that people have made the investment of their time and their resources to help others," Mach said. "It's very gratifying for us to see how the people of Yankton and surrounding communities have come to embrace this Tickets for Saturday's conference are available at the Carpenter's Shop and Clark's Rentals, by phone at 800-965-9324 or at iTickets.com. All proceeds will benefit the Yankton Sack Pack program, the Yankton Contact Center and the ministry of Helping Hands for Haiti. For more information, visit www.kahyankton.org.

Vice President Joe Biden and Republican running mate Paul Ryan of Wisconsin went through their final campaign paces, as well.

In Sterling, Va., not far from Washington, the vice president accused Republicans of running away from their record, but added, "a leopard can't change his spots."

Ryan started out in Reno, Nev., where he said the president has come up short in his promises to change Washington and repair the economy. This may be the best that Barack Obama can offer, but this is not the best America can," he said, before flying off to Colorado and Ohio. Then it was home to Wisconsin, where he is on the ballot for re-election to Congress in case Republicans were unsuccessful in the presidential campaign.

Conscientious to the end, supporters kept knocking on doors in search of a possibly decisive vote.

In Enfield, N.H., Obama volunteer Sarah Ayres recalled driving up a deserted dirt road, unsure if she would find the house she was looking for. She turned down a long driveway, she said, got out of her car, and was met by a friendly, white goat. There were no people home, but the goat was there, so I don't know if I should count that as a contact," she joked.

Associated Press writers Beth Fouhy, Donna Cassata and Stephen Ohlemacher in Washington, Steve Peoples and Ann Sanner in Ohio, Philip Elliott in Colorado, Jim Kuhnhenn and Matthew Daly in Virginia and Holly Ramer in New Hampshire contributed to this story.
