

Lyons Inducted Into Hall Of Fame

The University of Kentucky Gluck Equine Research Foundation inducted Eugene T. Lyons into the UK Equine Research Hall of Fame Sept. 23 at Keeneland Race Course along with George Allen, a posthumous inductee formerly of UK's Gluck Equine Research Center and Stephanie Valberg of the University of Minnesota.

Eugene T. Lyons, a native of Yankton, South Dakota, joined the faculty in the UK Department of Veterinary Science in 1963. In his more than 45-year career, Lyons' work continues to attract interest in the field of equine helminth infections.

Gene Lyons was born in 1931 to a farm family near Yankton, South Dakota. His early education was at the Willowdale District #3 school on his parents' family farm (William and Mary Lyons) and Yankton High School. He received a B.S. degree in Wildlife/Zoology/Agriculture in 1956 at South Dakota State University, a M.S. degree in zoology (parasitology) in 1958 at Kansas State University, and a PhD in 1963 in zoology (parasitology) at Colorado State University. Research for the M.S. degree was on internal parasites of the Black-tailed Jackrabbit in Kansas and for the PhD was on hookworms in Northern Fur Seals in Alaska. His academic career began at the Department of Animal Pathology (now Veterinary Science) at the University of Kentucky (UK) in 1958-1960 and restarted in 1963, continuing to the present (2012). He served in the United States Coast Guard from 1950-1953.

Lyons was the first to demonstrate the transmission of helminth parasites in milk of mother seals to their offspring; this observation was later extended to a number of equine helminth infections and altered current thinking on the epidemiology of different endoparasitic diseases of the horse. Lyons is also recognized for the importance of his contributions to the field of acquired resistance of small roundworm infections in the horse to various anthelmintic drugs.

"This is a great, and I personally feel, an undeserved honor for myself alone. It is unfortunate that the other team members, Sharon Tolliver and Sandra Collins, cannot be included as co-awardees," Lyons said.

In collaboration with Hal Drudge, DVM, ScD for many years and continuing after Hal's retirement, Gene has done research on internal parasites of horses, cattle, and sheep. This included development of an innovative parasite control program of anthelmintic treatment of horses every 6-8 weeks. The program plus effective drugs, have been considered by some to be the main reason for the tremendous decline of the most pathogenic horse parasites (Strongylus spp). All of the commercial parasiticides for horses have been tested here as a neutral party. Resulting data are published in scientific journals, lay publications, and university bulletins allowing users access to unbiased information on a product. Drug resistance of small strongyles and ascarids has been studied intensely here, providing up to date findings for those involved with horses. Team work by many individuals, especially Sharon Tolliver and Sandra Collins who have worked a remarkable combined total of almost 90 years, has resulted in highly productive research.

In research for his PhD on hookworms in Northern Fur Seals with his mentor O.W. Olsen, Gene found a new form of parasite transmission. This was the first discovery of a larval helminth (nematode, fluke, tapeworm or acanthocephalan) passed in milk of the mother to her offspring in which the larva developed into an adult. After detection of transmammary transmission of hookworms in fur seals, here at the University of Kentucky we found it occurs with Strongyloides spp in horses, cattle and sheep and others established that it happens for several parasite species in a number of hosts.

BEADLE SCHOOL PLAY

SUBMITTED PHOTO

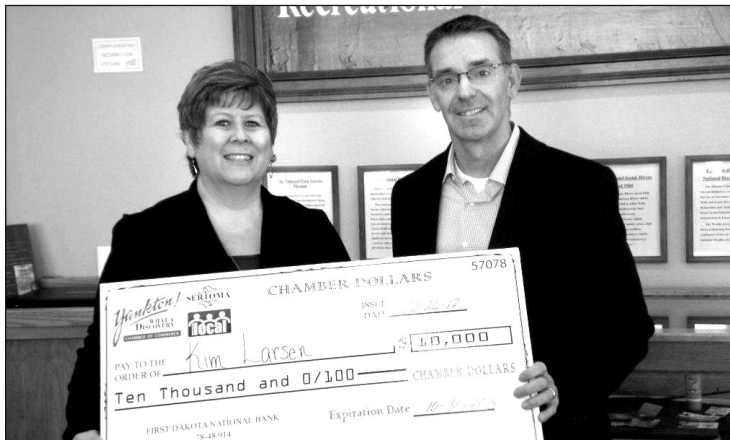

The Beadle PTA sponsored a play for all of the students at Beadle on November 20. The students were entertained by the Hampstead Stage Company's rendition of Treasure Island. The show was performed by two professional actors, each playing multiple roles. The script was based on the book, Treasure Island and included children and adults from the audience. The play lasted one hour, with a question and answer session following the performance. Pictured are Connor Teichrow, Breanna Hagen and Mrs. Becker serving as part of the ship's crew with actors from the Hampstead Stage Company.

Chamber Dollars Giveaway And Donation

Approximately $15,500 in Chamber Dollars was awarded to 14 lucky winners and more than $4,000 was raised to support the Shop Local campaign for the holidays and Sertoma Youth Football.

Fourteen individuals and one non-profit group from the Yankton area went home with a nice pre-holiday gift, when their winning tickets were drawn Friday, Oct. 26, at the 3rd Annual "Tailgate Party". The winners were announced during the dance held at Minervas Grill & Bar. The drawing was the culmination of a five week fundraising campaign to support the Sertoma Junior Football program and the Yankton Area Chamber of Commerce's Shop Local campaign.

The purpose behind the raffle was to raise money to benefit a local youth organization and raise the awareness of the impact of shopping locally. The Chamber will take its portion raised and put it directly back into the community for the holiday season by distributing

YANKTON COMMUNITY FORUM

Yankton Community Forum member Doris Allan arranged to have M.J. Rogers speak to the Forum group this Thanksgiving week. He has been an archery coach for the last 20 years and while coaching, he has traveled extensively, including Asia, Africa, Australia, and Europe. Prior to coming to Yankton to work at the National Field Archery Association, he worked at the Olympic Training Center, Chula Vista, Calif. He coached an archer at the 2004 Olympic Games in Athens and has been head coach for 5 world field championships teams and one world indoor championship team.

Mr. Rogers spoke about his rewarding experience of coaching the Paralympic athletes at the most recent Paralympic Games in London this year. He talked about the amazing skill and spirit of those athletes as well as how they adapt and train to meet the intense challenges of this level of competition. In addition to giving some history of the development of the Paralympics, he also outlined the various sports categories and classifications which have been set up for competition. He related that the emphasis of these games is to highlight the particular athletic achievements of these individuals and their abilities.

In December, Mr. Rogers will be traveling to Bogotá, Columbia, to teach a group of coaches preparing for World Games competition in the Spring of 2013. His wife, Marihelen, was at the NFAA Easton Yankton Archery Center.

They look forward to moving to Illinois at the beginning of next year, to be closer to family and grandchildren. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers have been a welcome addition to the Yankton community since 2008 and their presence and expertise will be missed.

Yankton Community Forum meets every Tuesday morning at Hillcrest Country Club. Rolls and coffee are served about 8:30 a.m. and the program begins at 9 a.m. after the pledge of allegiance, prayer and a brief sing-along. Each week, there is a different speaker presenting a regional/community oriented, informative and entertaining topic. If you are interested in joining our friendly group, please contact Secretary/Treasurer, Rose Mather (665-4615) or President Jim Filips (665-0923).

TOASTMASTERS CLUB 6217

Club President Bader announced "Guest Day" on December 6th with a "door prizes" contest". Each guest and each club member sponsor will have their chance at the drawing. Hosts and guests may contact Bader or Miller at the hospital for more details.

Chelsi Hames and Melissa Bader entertained the noon Toastmasters Club

6217 with their Nov. 15 manual speeches at the KPI Building. Hames asked "How come?" friends and families were "tearing each other apart" arguing over the Presidential election without acceptance or respect. Bader's "Emotional Extremes" was introduced with the old adage "big boys don't cry" and analyzed strategies for "emotionally volatile situations".

MJ Rogers and Eileen O'Connor were the evaluators. Rogers evaluated Hames stating that her topic, "interweaving both religion and politics was certainly interesting!" O'Connor thought body movements and good eye contact were pluses for Bader.

As Toastmaster, Greg Stach called on the Master Evaluator Fran Kocer, asking Kocer to name his team. Kocer assigned Muriel Stach as "ah" counter, Tim Bohn to lead the invocation, Jane Miller to time the speakers, and Kary Beltz as grammarian with her word of the day, "unwieldy."

Table Topics Master Jen Hovland had a timely Thanksgiving and election theme to her impromptu questions. She called on Jeff May for his thoughts on why "November and not October, like Canada's thanksgiving" with May declaring his enjoyment of turkey any day of the year. Steve Anderson was thankful for not only the food but good health. Stan Sudbeck wants to eat with his "tribe" of relatives. Jane Miller doesn't care for the "hoopla" of the parades but enjoys a feeling of festivity. Kocer signed up for the "wrong party" at voter registration.

Stach awarded trophies to Rogers as Best Evaluator, Anderson and Miller tied for Best Respondents and Hames received Best Speaker.

GATHER AROUND THE TABLE

Brought to you by

DFAA
Drug Free Action Alliance

Gather your family around the table. National Family Week is observed annually Thanksgiving week. Compared to teens who have frequent family dinners (five to seven per week), those who have fewer than three family dinners per week are almost four times likelier to use tobacco; more than twice as likely to use alcohol and almost four times likelier to say they expect to try drugs in the future.
