meeting, according to Carney. Carney said in his letter that he's working with Stephanie Judson, president of the South Dakota Community Foundation. Carney and SDCF's then-president Bob Sutton signed the agreement in 2007 creating the activities foundation.

Records from the board's meetings in 2012 and 2013 show Carney and his staff presented options for raising money for the foundation on several occasions.

The meeting minutes however don't show any discussions or explanations about why the foundation needed the money or why the foundation should be used rather than the association's treasury.

On Feb. 27, the directors voted 5-2 to reject Carney's proposal that one dollar from each sub-tournament ticket sale be dedicated to the foundation for the next five years.

The board voted 8-0 to raise sub-state tournament ticket prices by $2 apiece to $5 for students and $7 for adults on June 5.

Then the board voted 6-2 on Aug. 29 to dedicate $1 from each sub-state tournament ticket to the foundation.

Three things happened between the February and August votes.

The association's general membership agreed at the April annual meeting to shift $55,000 into the foundation. That was in addition to $10,000 put into the foundation as the result of a refund to the association from its national organization.

Three directors changed from nays to ayes. They were chairman Darren Paulson of Rapid City Central, Jason Uttermark of Aberdeen and vice chairman Rick Weber of Flandreau.

And the board had turnover in three positions. Two new directors became ayes for the August vote: Dan Whalen of Pierre and Mike Miller of Aberdeen Central. The other new director, Eldon Marshall of White River, voted nay.

Two returning members remained true to their original positions. Mike Ruth of Miller voted aye both times, while Todd Trask of Wall voted nay both times.

Of the $2 increase, the other dollar is split between schools and the association. Of that dollar, schools receive 70 cents from district-level tournament tickets and 60 cents from regional-level tournament tickets.

Complete figures from the fall sub-tournaments haven't been reported yet to the association. But in 2012, for example, sub-tournaments overall generated nearly as much revenue for the association as did state tournaments.

In 2007, the Legislature approved SB 195 allowing school districts to raise money from one event in each activity recognized by the association for the purposes of school funding or interscholastic activities.

The final version of the legislation was both broader and more restrictive than originally planned by its prime sponsor, Sen. Cooper Garnos, R-Presho.

In its original form, the legislation would have allowed schools to remit money to the association or to a local endowment for support of interscholastic activities.

The bill was amended in the House of Representatives by Rep. Mike Buckingham, R-Rapid City, after he failed to kill it at the House committee hearing. His amendment eliminated the provision to send money to the association.

The only witness to testify at the Senate and House hearings was lobbyist John Brown, representing SDHSAA.

Not long after the bill became law, Carney proceeded to establish the foundation.

Two days before sending the letter this month, Carney presented the association's with a financial report for foundation.

Carney said the foundation's contributions since its start total $65,000 and the present fair-market value of the foundation's investments was $67,980.63.

That $65,000 would have come from the $55,000 transfer and the $10,000 refund.

P&D Requests Memories Of JFK Shooting

Where were you — and what were you doing — when President John F. Kennedy was shot on Nov. 22, 1963.

A half-century later, it's still surprising how many people recall this detail. It's a reflection of the profound shock this incident had on this country and its people.

The Press & Dakotan is planning a couple of stories connected to the anniversary, including recollections of people who remember where they were on that fateful American day. Let us know your memories and your thoughts. You can email them to newsroom@yankton.net, or mail them to JFK Memories, c/o Kelly Hertz, Yankton Press & Dakotan, 319 Walnut, Yankton, SD 57078. The deadline for submission is 5 p.m. today (Wednesday).

Plant

Meanwhile, two of the foreign investor partnerships that loaned Northern Beef about $60 million through the federal EB-5 investment-for-green-cards immigration program have filed suit against the plant to get better placement among the long list of creditors.

South Dakota Investment Fund Limited Partnership No. 6 and South Dakota Investment Fund Limited Partnership No. 9 are asking the bankruptcy judge to declare their claims as "prior and superior to the liens and claims of all other parties" except for White Oak's claim of $45 million and any amount owed to an Aberdeen digging company.

The use of EB-5 funds in South Dakota has been the subject of a state and federal investigation. In September, the South Dakota Governor's Office of Economic Development ended its contract with SDR Inc., the private regional center administering the EB-5 program in the state, "for cause."

Land for the Northern Beef plant was first secured in 2006, but the company wasn't able to slaughter its first animal until late in 2012 and struggled to reach anywhere near its production target of 1,500 head per day. With $138.8 million in liabilities and just $79.3 million in assets, according to court documents, the plant laid off most of its employees and halted production.

I would like to thank the EMT's, Troy & Bonnie, the guys from fire station #2 that came to help, the ER staff and a special thank you to my husband for all the help I received Monday night with my scare from the flu or whatever it was that got me down.

God Bless All of You,
