Hosmer To Speak At Museum Event

The Dakota Territorial Museum will welcome David Hosmer to its monthly Brown Bag Lunch from noon-1 p.m. today (Friday) in the museum conference room (across the street from Avera Sacred Heart Hospital).

Hosmer's presentation will focus on why our World War II veterans mean so much to us today. He has interviewed 75 area veterans of World War II, and he will attempt to present the parts they played through the lens of contemporary international views.

The museum's monthly Brown Bag lunches are the first Friday of each month and are open to the public. There is no charge, but a free-will donation is accepted.

LCTC Appreciation Event Tonight

The Lewis and Clark Theatre Company is hosting its annual membership appreciation event at 6 p.m. tonight (Friday) at the Dakota Theatre on Walnut St.

There is a 6 p.m. social hour and tour of the theater. At 7 p.m., there will be an announcement of the company's 54th season. At 7:15 p.m., the will be a special performance by Mount Marty's Smooth Benediction.

All members are welcome. Call 605-665-4711 to RSVP.

BH Variety Show In Springfield

SPRINGFIELD — The Bon Homme High School Variety Show will be held at the Springfield School Auditorium at 7:30 p.m. tonight (Friday) and 2:30 p.m. Sunday, Nov. 9.

Doors will open 30 minutes before the performance.

Yankton Writer's Club Meets Monday

The Yankton Area Writer's Club Meeting will hold its monthly meeting at 7 p.m. Monday, Nov. 10, at the Fry'n Pan Restaurant, 502 West 21st St.

From published authors to hobbyists, from pro to amateur, the Yankton Area Writer's Club is comprised of people in Yankton, South Dakota, and the surrounding area, who have a passion for writing and a desire to help aspiring writers by offering readings, critiques, conferences and monthly lessons.

Meetings are open to all ages, and there are no dues. The group meets the second Monday of every month (the third Monday if the second falls on a holiday).

For more information, contact 605-664-6582 or info@yanktonwriters.com, or visit <http://yanktonwriters.com/>.

Johnny Cash Tribute At Gayville Nov. 15

GAYVILLE — Gayville Hall presents "A Celebration of Johnny Cash," starring John and Susan McNeill, Nick Schwebach, and Owen DeJong, at 8 p.m. Saturday, Nov. 15, in Gayville.

John McNeill sings Cash's vocals in the show and plays guitar, harmonica, and drums. His wife Susan plays bass and sings June Carter Cash's duets with the "Man in Black."

DeJong, who holds a master's degree in violin performance, plays fiddle, and Schwebach plays lead guitar.

The musicians first performed the two-hour tribute at Gayville Hall in 2003, shortly after Cash's death, drawing the largest crowd ever at the venue. It has been repeated every year since.

Gayville Hall is at 502 Washington Street. Call (605) 267-2859 for ticket information.

'Red Berries' A Sweet Read

"Red Berries White Clouds Blue Sky" by Sandra Dallas' © 2014, Sleeping Bear Press; 216 pages

BY TERRI SCHLICHENMEYER

Have you ever had to move?

If you have, you know the drill: toys in one box, clothes in another. Boxes everywhere, filled with dishes and towels, and things that will need to be put away in the new house. It's a mess, but it's kinda fun.

A move from California to Colorado is at the heart of the new book "Red Berries White Clouds Blue Sky" by Sandra Dallas — but this move is not good at all.

Twelve-year-old Tomi Itano hoped that her little brother, Hiro, wouldn't notice the hurtful word on the door of the grocery store. It made her cringe that he was seven years old and was perfectly able to read the word "Japs."

It was 1942, and the Japanese had just bombed Pearl Harbor. America entered World War II soon after, which meant plenty of discrimination for Japanese-Americans like the Itanos. Tomi, Hiro and their older brother, Roy, had been born in America, but that didn't seem to matter to many in their California town.

Mom said "Shikata ga nai" ("It cannot be helped."). Pop just kept working on the strawberry farm where they all lived — until the day the FBI showed up, arrested him and took him away to prison camp.

Shortly afterward, the rest of the Itanos packed a single suitcase and were forced to move to a relocation camp.

Ellis, Colorado, was nothing at all like California, and Tallgrass Camp was nothing like the strawberry farm. Tomi's family lived in a barracks surrounded by barbed wire, in an area that didn't seem like it would grow anything. There was a school and a community hall where Mom taught other Japanese-American women to sew, but the Itanos didn't much like living there — especially without Pop. Still, they made friends and started new projects, and things returned to a new kind of normal.

Then the one thing Tomi wanted more than anything finally happened — but it made her mad and bitter. The Itanos were as American as anybody, so why were they treated as if they weren't? She couldn't stop being angry, until her brother asked her to do something very important ...

Based loosely on real history and a real internment camp in Colorado, "Red Berries White Clouds Blue Sky" is a fascinating story, both for kids and for adults.

In addition to explaining the historical facts, author Sandra Dallas says in her afterword that, years ago, she met a couple of Japanese-American journalists who'd spent the war years in relocation camps, and their stories were the basis for bits of this book. That lends definite authenticity, but my favorite part here is that Dallas' Tomi is EveryGirl circa 1946, despite what she and her family endures. That will resonate with young readers, who will very easily identify with her.

While boys can surely enjoy this book, it's meant more for girls ages 9-to-12, particularly those who love historically-based chapter books, or who enjoy learning from their novels. For them, "Red Berries White Clouds Blue Sky" is golden.

YAA Set For A Busy November

BY JULIE J. AMSBERRY

Yankton Area Arts

October was a busy month for the arts with a guest speaker at GAR Hall, a new exhibit opening, a Czech bagpipe concert, theatrical performances at both Yankton High School and Lewis and Clark Theater, the high school BandAid concert and lively music at Harvest Halloween.

Well, it's time to gear up for November, party people!

Tonight at GAR Hall, Norma Wilson and Nancy Losacker return to our gallery for a free public presentation featuring their poetry and mosaics currently on exhibit through Nov. 18. They will not only present information about some of the pieces they have collaborated on that currently grace the walls of GAR Hall, but also will introduce the viewers to other works not in this installation. Norma will read some of her poetry as well. Please join us this evening from 5:30-7 p.m. ... refreshments included!

Services Center Federal Credit Union has chosen Yankton Area Arts as its Member's Choice Charity during the month of November! Stop in the SCFCU during November to make a donation to YAA and they will match your donations up to $1,000! These generous donations will directly support programs like Art Adventure, Kids Studio, Kids Art Fest, Summer Band Concerts, adult art classes and so much more! We have put together an artful display at SCFCU featuring some of the many activities and programs we promote each year.

The annual holiday fine art and craft show, Crimson Door, is right around the corner! If you aren't familiar with this boutique style shopping experience, it is one not to miss. With nearly thirty fine artists and craftsmen, you will surely find the perfect Christmas gift for someone special or for
