

USD Marks International Education Week With Presentations From Abroad Scholars

VERMILLION — Speeches by visiting scholars from India and Scotland and cultural food tasting are among numerous activities planned for International Education Week at the University of South Dakota.

USD's Center for Academic and Global Engagement (CAGE) hosts the effort that also includes music, forums, movies and other events alongside other campuses and organizations worldwide. A joint program of the Department of State and Department of Education, IEW 2015 is an opportunity to celebrate the benefits and impacts of global learning and connection, said Sarah Wittmuss, director of CAGE.

"It is an excellent way to showcase the strides USD has made toward its strategic plan goal of increasing the international focus of campus. We welcome campus and community partners to experience the wide array of programs available during the week," she said.
