Giving

them sorted by size and type, so when our actual give away occurs, it is all ready to go."

Kettering said the United Way no longer washes and repairs the items donated, so make sure that all items donated have been washed.

"While we don't fix any items that come in, we do have a table where we put our 'as-is items,'" Kettering said. "Otherwise if an item is clean and in good repair it will be hung up and sized for selection."

Hanson said that if a member of the community is in need of winter wear — from sizes infant to adults — they should arrive at the giveaway as early as possible.

"While we do limit the giveaway to one coat for each person in the family, the selection does go very fast," she said. "We do not ask for any proof of income;

if a family needs items, they are welcome to come and find items for their family. Any items left over after we are done will be donated to either the Clothing Closet or taken to those in need on reservations in the state."

In addition to the giveaway, the Clothing Closet will be having a free voucher that day from 9 a.m.-noon.

Other scheduled events in the community on Make A Difference Day include:

- a Senior Yard Work event being sponsored by The Center;
- "Mount Marty College's Acting Compassionate Through Service (ACTS) group contacted us that they have 10 students who will be going throughout the community and doing yard work, putting up storm windows, general helping around the home for seniors of the area who have called and let us know they need assistance," said Tammy Matuska of The Center. "If someone in the community would like to get signed up and on the list, they should call The Center (665-4685) to get registered."
- Lions Club will be hosting the second annual baby shower for the Contact Center at 605 East 18th Street from 2-4 p.m. They will be collecting anything to make a baby happy, warm and dry. Items collected can include baby food, formula, bibs, clothing and baby wipes.

• the Yankton Chamber of Commerce will be hosting a sand-bag river clean up; and

• the annual Boy Scout food drive for the Contact Center will be held.

"While Make A Difference Day is a great way to get everyone in the community out helping each other, it isn't the only way we are trying to help our neighbors," Kettering said. "People don't have to be involved in the set-up events. If they want to go out and pick up litter, mow their neighbors yard — whatever they do, it helps. We just want people to get involved. They also don't have to wait until just this one day. We are here helping year round."

Kettering said if a person in the community is looking for a way to help, contact the United Way office at 605-665-6766.

bins of apples in the cooler right now."

Because Hebda's Farms decided to celebrate its fall harvest this year, it did add a new aspect to the tours.

"The corn maze is new for us this year," she said. "We have been here six years and this is the first time we have put one in. We designed it with is a pumpkin and our letters 'HF' in there and put wrong ways ... as well to make it a little challenging for the kids to make their way through."

Hebda said hearing the kids run through the maze is a very satisfying result of the orchard's efforts to create the maze.

"The kids scream and laugh all the way through," she said. "You will hear, 'Oh no, you can't go that way!' But they are very proud of themselves when they make their way from one end to the other. It is fun to watch because, at the start, they all stay as a pack going through there. It is fun to see them figure out who can get through first."

The process of designing the maze was a family affair, requiring two days to complete and the help of all their children to finish.

For the kindergartners from Sacred Heart School who were at Hebda's Farm on Friday, the hay maze and tower were also a big attraction.

"The hay maze is made with large square bales and makes a large hay tower, which makes a great photo opportunity, so they can take pictures and what-not," Hebda said. "But even with that, the students still love picking their pumpkins."

While Hebda said overall it was a normal year for the farm, the frosts in early May and in early September have stopped the outdoor growing season at the farm.

"The tomatoes and peppers and such that we had outside are done for the year," she said. "But, we do have a high tunnel, which is like a hoop house where we can still grow products inside of there. In a normal season when the frost isn't quite so early, we do have more products grown outdoors. Overall though, I have to say the pumpkins — while we many times have some left in the field that we just disk under — this year there will not be as many left over."

Overall, Hebda said it is a busy, fun time of the year at the farm, and she is always excited to see the faces of the students enjoying the hard work put in.

"It does make it all worth it," she said. "I look forward to the students and kids and seeing their reactions."
