"I'm always having fun," he said. "I wanted to try something new."
 "It was a little windy, so I was actually getting kind of tired," said Jongeling, who later joked that he sped up down the stretch because he had to use the restroom.
 Rounding out the teams that qualify for state was South Central, which was third at 35.
 For Parker, defending its state Class B title could prove more challenging, with the balance of Irene-Wakonda looming behind the Pheasants.
 "I think our team will do pretty good again, as long as we do what we did last year," Jongeling said.
 Jongeling said his biggest competition for the individual title will once again be Jase Kraft of Wessington Springs. The two faced off once this season, with Jongeling beating Kraft by 36 seconds at the McCook Central-Montrose Invitational in late August.
 The state meet will be held Oct. 22 in Sioux Falls, with the Class B girls at 1 p.m. and Class B boys at 2 p.m.

Chris Allen Finds New Home At Iowa State

AMES, Iowa (AP) — Iowa State guard Chris Allen used to be one of the more well-known players in all of college basketball.
 Now he's just that guy — as in, "Oh yeah, I remember that guy."
 Allen was a key cog in Michigan State's Final Four teams in 2009 and 2010 that fell short in its stirring quest to win the national title in Detroit and lost to a Butler team trying to pull off a similar feat in Indianapolis.
 After an exit from East Lansing that may never be fully explained, Allen landed at Iowa State in the summer of 2010 as one of a crop of transfers coach Fred Hoiberg hoped can speed up his rebuilding efforts.
 Allen, a 6-foot-3 guard, will be back in the spotlight for the Cyclones this winter. In fact, he's already been tabbed as a preseason honorable mention All-Big 12 pick by the league's coaches.
 "He's been there, and that's what you want. You want people that have been in those types of situations," Hoiberg said Tuesday.
 Because Allen's spent the past year in Ames, a brief primer on his career seems in order.
 Allen was a first-team all-state pick at Meadowcreek High in Georgia in 2007 and one of the nation's most touted recruits when he signed with the Spartans. He contributed immediately for Michigan State, averaging 6.3 points as a freshman and scoring a season-high 20 in a loss to Memphis in the regional semifinals in 2008.
 Allen's role grew in 2008-09, as he led the Spartans with 52 3-pointers and scored 16 points in the title game loss to the Tar Heels. He moved into the starting lineup as a junior, scoring at least 10 points 15 times, but by then his relationship with coach Tom Izzo began to deteriorate.
 Allen was suspended for the team's Big Ten tournament opener. He helped lead the Spartans back to the title game, but in August of 2010 he was kicked off the team for unspecified reasons.
 Allen said Tuesday that he doesn't harbor any resentment toward Izzo, who he praised for his demanding but caring relationship with his players.
 "It was so long ago, I kind of blocked it out of my memory," Allen said. "It happened, but it's the past. If I dwell on that, then I not going to do nothing here."
 It didn't take long for Hoiberg to welcome Allen to Iowa State.
 Hoiberg, then preparing for his first season as a coach at any level, figured the fastest way to get the Cyclones competitive in the Big 12 was to take chances on transfers like Allen, Royce White (Minnesota) and Chris Babb (Penn State).
 None of them were eligible last season, and Iowa State's lack of depth wore it down as it stumbled to a 3-13 record in the Big 12 after a promising start in nonconference play.

Berrian Won't Talk About Benching

EDEN PRAIRIE, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Vikings wide receiver Bernard Berrian says he's "already over" not playing in last Sunday's game.
 Berrian declined Wednesday to discuss his punishment, calling it "old news." It was the first time Berrian was available to reporters since coach Leslie Frazier put him on the inactive list against Arizona for an unspecified disciplinary reason. Berrian said he doesn't like to talk about "stuff that's in the past."
 Berrian has only two catches for 37 yards this year. He also created controversy last week when he engaged in an argument on Twitter with a state lawmaker over Berrian's on-field performance.
 Berrian says he believes he's back in good standing with the team. The Vikings play at Chicago this Sunday night.
