YCL Slates Events About Cuban Missile Crisis

What do you remember about the Cuban Missile Crisis? For many people, even though we might have been young, they remember how important it was to listen to national news every day. Although they were too small to understand the seriousness of the situation, they saw the effect it had on their parents and grandparents.

Join Doug Sall at the Yankton Community Library, 515 Walnut Street, at 6:30 p.m. Oct. 16, as he guides the audience through these tense days with an overview of what lead up to the crisis and how the Kennedy Administration dealt with it.

You'll hear an excerpt from the speech John F. Kennedy delivered to the nation and stories about United States Naval Captain William B. Ecker and his squadron who flew several aerial reconnaissance missions over Cuba, photographing the missile launch sites and providing the president and the world with solid proof of what was happening in Cuba.

On Oct. 23, the library will show the movie "Thirteen Days." which is an historic fictional depiction of the events that took place during the crisis. This will also begin at 6:30 p.m. For further information, contact the library at 668-5275.
