While Joe Glenn was talking during our Thursday afternoon interview about preparing for Missouri State, he said his Coyotes were ready for a team facing a "must-win. That led me to ask him: "Is it a must-win for you too?"

There wasn't much hesitation when he responded with an emphatic "Yes."

Glenn's Coyotes, at 1-4 overall and 0-2 in the Missouri Vallev Football Conference, would sure like to heat Missouri State on Saturday afternoon in advance of a brutal stretch to close the regular season. Consider this: Following their trip to Springfield, Mo., the Coyotes will play five of their final six games away from Vermillion. That includes an Oct. 20 game against North Dakota State in Sioux Falls, with the one exception coming Nov. 10 against Northern Iowa in the DakotaDome. Other than that, a team that has struggled to win on the road will be playing mostly on the road.

Two players, linebackers Tyler Starr and Ryan Hillier, I talked to after practice Thursday both said as much. That no, they're not looking past Missouri State, and yes, they realize the implications of an 0-3 start in the Val-

In short, if USD loses again Saturday, it means an 0-3 conference record going up against the defending national champions from North Dakota State. And then games at Indiana State and Youngstown State. Oh, and then there's the regular season finale at nationally-ranked South Dakota State. So ves. Glenn's team faces a must-win this weekend.

will see more action and Jace Likness is set to play for the first time all season. Dustin Hopper is still out due to a neck injury suffered in the Roosevelt game. Robert Borgstrom, Kyler Johnson and backup quarterback Mason Strahl (concussion) are also ruled out for tonight's contest. That will hand backup quarterback duties to sophomore Brady Hale, in addition to the kicking duties he took over following Lane Sawatzke's injury. Juniors Ty Hauger and Shay

Robinson are also out for tonight's game, as well as the remainder of the season for the Bucks. Despite the injuries, Likness did see a positive this week with the return of Hisek and Van Winkle injecting some life into the practices

as the season begins to wear on. 'James and Logan coming back to practice brought some extra energy this week," Likness said. "Our attitudes have been great and some of those previously injured kids have come back to spark us." Actions kicks off at Crane-Youngworth Field at 7 p.m.
