Carly Rae Jepsen Gets Big Boost From Bieber

BY JON BREAM

© 2012, Star Tribune (Minneapolis)

MINNEAPOLIS — Justin Bieber, Nickelback and James Taylor are rarely mentioned in the same sentence. But when you come out of nowhere — OK, Čanada — and score the biggest pop song of the year ("Call Me Maybe"), people want to know everything about you, Carly Rae Jepsen. And those three stars have been huge in her

Here's her back story in a tweet:

"James Taylor was the soundtrack of her childhood; Nickelback signed her to its label; Biebs' tweet made her famous + he's taking her on tour"

No matter what fans of Gotye ("Somebody That I Used to Know") or fun. ("We Are Young") might contend, Jepsen has the song of the year. No maybes about it.

"Thank you for saying that," said Jepsen. "I don't know that I look at it that way. I think there are many amazing songs that came out this year. I feel honestly blessed to be part of any people's soundtracks at all."

Why is her super-catchy pop ditty — the tale of a flirtatious encounter, with her giving him her phone number — so big?

"It's something moms and daughters can relate to together," said program director Rich Davis of Minneapolis radio station KDWB-FM. "It's a really good song, though it's really simple. It's got a great hook. And she's a cute new artist with ties to Justin

"Call Me Maybe," released last fall in Canada, got a boost when fellow Canadian Bieber tweeted his love for the tune on Dec. 30. The song shot up the Canadian charts, leading to a U.S. release in

Then the Biebs piled it on. He and some of his pals, including Selena Gomez and Ashley Tisdale, made a homemade video of the tune that has received more than 50 million views. More videos followed, fashioned by the Harvard baseball team, the U.S. Olympic swim team, U.S. Army soldiers in Afghanistan and even former Secretary of State Colin Powell. (Just check YouTube.) "The parody videos helped spread it," said Jepsen, whose official "Call Me Maybe" video has tallied more than 280 million views on YouTube. "It was neat to see how people in countries I'd never visited were putting together their own version of the Of course, her phenomenal success has brought the inevitable detractors. Thinking: What a perfect song for teens by a teen, some people wondered if Jepsen was the next Taylor Swift. Um, no. Jepsen is 26, not 16.

She's older than Lady Gaga.

That's not a bad thing, said KDWB's Davis: "Sometimes younger artists get knocked for being kiddie. Once people found out she was 26 and not a tween bubble-gum throwaway artist, it probably helped her.' Jepsen is puzzled by the brouhaha over her age.

'What woman doesn't love to hear that she looks younger? I have to say it's flattering and a little bit shocking for me 'cause I never think of myself as that young. Last night, someone said 15' and I'm looking at them like 'Really? I don't see it.' I write what I write. No real thought about how my age fits in." Jepsen describes herself as creative, sensitive and kind, a tomboy at heart who loves chess and holds a yellow belt in karate. Since she was 7, she wanted to be a singer. That's when pop balladeer Taylor became "the soundtrack of my childhood," she said of her days in Mission, British Columbia, just east of Vancouver. "My father used to play me James Taylor songs at night when I couldn't sleep. My storytelling and wanting that warm fuzziness in your tummy comes from listening to him."

After attending the Canadian College of Performing Arts and fin-
