fact it is not. The group does not take donations from other people, there are no membership fees or dues and the program is not based on income.

Mason said the food used in the program "comes from Iowa and is bought by vendors and they try to keep the food local to the Midwest. They distribute throughout the Midwest and it's really just to help the community out."

Most of the food that is purchased is fresh, though some-times fruit comes frozen.

"Our mission is really to reach out to the community to benefit other people," said Laurie Peterson, distribution coordinator.

"We're trying to create a network of people helping one another."

area, talking to other people and distributing flyers throughout businesses in town.

"The last few years have really been tough times for people all over. There is a lot of division within the country now and this is an opportunity not to have that," Mason said. "The organization is primarily volunteer-driven and it would be great if other people came to volunteer."

SHARE began again in Yankton a few years ago, following a hia-tus, when volunteers agreed to start it back up because of the benefits it can offer the commu-nity.

"For a lot of volunteers, it won't be a situation where they have to come every month. It would be more like you telling us when you can be there to help out," Peterson said. "If we have a long list of backups, it will really help."

Mason and Peterson noted that there are no restrictions on the type of volunteering you can do to meet the two-hour guideline each month.

"A lot of people really don't know about the group in Yank-ton," Mason said. "I volunteered at the clinic a few months ago and they didn't know about it, so I went and printed some informa-tion off for them."

The group in Yankton typically has about 35 food orders each month, which is down from the 50 orders a month it had in the past. Mason and Peterson hope to ex-pand the program so they can have a truck deliver the food to Yankton from Sioux City.

Anyone interested in volun-teering can contact Sam Mason at 605-661-7378 or Laurie Peterson at 605-665-5541 for more informa-tion.

ON THIS DATE

75 YEARS AGO

Friday, October 29, 1937

- Rural teachers of Yankton county who are working under state certificate draw an average salary of $64 per month, and those working under first grade certificate are drawing an average of $58 per month, according to a statistical tabulation prepared by Walter Mueller, deputy county superintendent, and made public today by Supt. F. F. Schaeffer.
- Starting the game with the same fighting and determined attitude in which they played the last half with Brookings, the Yankton high school Bucks staged a surprising and decisive upset by marching to a 19 to 13 victory over Le Mars high school at Le Mars last night.

50 YEARS AGO

Monday, October 29, 1962

- The United States pushed today for fast diplomatic action to nail down Soviet Premier Khrushchev's agree-ment to pull Soviet bases out of Cuba.
- State Safety Director Don Rounds said that accident reports show South

Dakota motorists are becoming more inclined to gamble their lives in no-passing zones.

25 YEARS AGO

Thursday, October 29, 1987

- The Toys for Tots Christmas project of the Yankton area is officially under way, said Ed Houska, Green Thumb supervisor. Any toys children have outgrown and extra toys which are in need of renewal or repair may be given to the project. The Yankton Terri-torial Museum is a drop-off place on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday from 8 a.m. to 2:30 p.m.
- Scottish Rite Masons from South Dakota and nearby Nebraska com-munities will gather at the Masonic Temple in Yankton to open the three-evening and two-day fall reunion beginning at 7:15 p.m. today. The fall reunion class will be named the U.S. Constitution Bi-centennial Class in honor of the 200th birthday of the U.S. Constitution. Scot-tish Rite Masonry was chartered in Yankton, Dakota Territory on Dec. 10, 1888, and has been active since that time.

patterns during competition.

"Rosie really likes those types of classes and she was always bred to be an English horse, so I also learned to really like those cate-gories and we always work well in them," she said.

Jade said she has always found horse riding to be gratifying and re-warding.

"(It's) an event that you can see all of your hard work paying off," she said. "You practice so hard all summer and can really see your im-provements by the end of the sum-mer. Horse riding is not such a team sport, so all the pressure is on you. You get to decide how you want it to go."

During the summer, Jade typi-cally trains 5-6 days a week in Nor-folk for several hours each day.

"With it being an hour and a half drive down there, it gets hard driv-ing all that way," she said, "and in the summer, sometimes the com-mitment gets a little difficult as well. Some of those days this sum-mer were so hot, so the days got re-ally long."

While balancing her senior year course work at YHS, Jade attended several horse shows around the re-gion in September. Not only did she do the AQHA regionals, she also performed in the Aksarben show in Lincoln, Neb., which featured more than 2,000 exhibitors from 11 differ-ent states, making it the largest 4H horse show in the nation. Jade per-formed well at that competition, taking grand champion in hunt seat equitation and senior English showmanship after coming in sec-ond in those categories a year ago.

"That was so huge to win it all after coming in second last year," she said.

In addition to those shows, she also was in the Silver Classic and Preclassic shows in Lincoln.

In the process, she had to sacri-fice her senior-year homecoming activities.

"At first I didn't think I would miss homecoming, then a competi-tion ended up landing that week-end. Since it is my senior year, it was hard but it came down to what was more important," Jade said. "I knew there would be plenty more football games I could go to. These were the big horse shows that were so important to me all summer and I wasn't going to give them up for a football game."

One of the biggest goals Jade had for herself this summer was to start doing reining patterns on a horse.

"Through the course of the year we were able to find her a reining horse," Heidi said. "Reining is an Olympic sport and an AQHA sport. The horse goes through maneuvers including sliding stops, spins and large circles — it's like figure skat-ing on a horse."

Jade added that reining is more fast-paced, with longer patterns that typically are about four min-utes long.

"I'm really excited to start rein-ing," she said. "It's a huge change from the previous events I've com-peted in and it will really make me a more well-rounded rider, but is also a big transition."

She added that her training for the reining events has been going well so far and she plans on com-peting in her first reining competi-tion in Rapid City in January.

Despite a big change from her other events, she said she's not nervous for the new horse riding style she is taking on.

"I've kind of gotten over being scared because horses are animals that can go off your actions. If you are nervous, they get nervous," Jade said. "Both of my horses are young, so they see that if I'm con-fident out there, they'll be more con-fident. I try not to get nervous but they only thing I do get nervous about is when I look at the patterns and try to memorize them. I don't really get nervous when I'm out there riding."

One of the things she focused on this summer was getting down the various concepts involved with reining events, which is a com-pletely different type of riding then she is used to.

"I'm blessed to be able to have good coaches teach me the differ-ent concepts and riding styles," she said.

Jade said horse riding has been a big part of her life ever since she began competing when she was 3 years old.

"Horse riding has taught me to be a lot more social because you meet people from all over the world that you wouldn't normally meet," she said. "It's also taught me a lot of patience and responsibil-ity."

After her senior year at YHS Jade hopes she can participate in an equestrian program in college. The only school to offer one in the state is South Dakota State Univer-sity. Other schools in the region that she has looked at include Kansas State, Iowa State and Uni-versity of Nebraska Lincoln.

"My heart is in South Dakota," she said.
