4-H Robotics Needs Volunteers, Youth

BROOKINGS — Robots have invaded pop culture and become wildly popular with youth across the world and now SDSU Extension and 4-H wants to expand their presence in South Dakota said Christine Wood, SDSU Extension 4-H STEM Field Specialist.

"Robots are plastered across the big screen in movies like 'Star Wars', 'Transformers', and 'Wall-E'. While science and technology isn't ready to produce a robot like C3PO, it has supplied our world with a variety of other types of robots," Wood said. "Robots are tools that help us achieve things; they have been developed to do work that is too dangerous, precise, dirty, or even boring. Robots work in factories building cars and electronics, explore under the sea and in outer space, serve in our militaries, and work alongside our doctors."

As South Dakota 4-H kicks off a new year, Wood said the organization wants to expand the Robotics program.

"We are looking for both youth and adults of any experience level to join us, and invite various other youth organizations and after school programs to partner with us and form 4-H Robotics clubs," she said.

Over the next few months South Dakota 4-H will be holding training for volunteers, troop leaders, educators, or parents interested in leading 4-H Robotics clubs.

Wood explained that robots are also starting to find a home within the educational sector, as they motivate, excite and inspire youth in the areas of science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) through hands-on application.

"The 4-H Robotics program encourages youth to expand their imaginations and develop problem solving, communication, and self-confidence," she said.

South Dakota 4-H will utilize the National 4-H Junk Drawer Robotics curriculum and Lego Mindstorms platform to expose youth to opportunities within robotics. The 4-H Robotics program encourages youth and adults to work together to develop local 4-H Robotics clubs.

"Starting a robotics club isn't difficult. Volunteers and members work with local SDSU Extension 4-H professionals who will provide training events and serve as mentors and teachers to younger children in after-school programs," Wood said. "They will also determine what level of curriculum is appropriate for their club."

Wood explained that club members can also decide if they want to get involved with robotics competitions like 4-H Robotics Challenge or FIRST.

To find out how you can get involved as a volunteer or 4-H member, or start your own Robotics club, contact Wood, Christine.Wood@sdstate.edu or (605) 782-3290.

Teen Read Week To Be Held At Library

The Yankton Community Library, 515 Walnut, will celebrate Teen Read Week Oct. 13-19 with a special display and programs aimed at encouraging teens to read and visit their library.

This year's theme "Seek the Unknown at your library" encourages teens to read science fiction, adventure books, fantasy titles and more. Teen Read Week is a time to celebrate reading for fun while encouraging teens to take advantage of reading in all its forms-books, magazines, e-books, audio books and more.

Teens are invited to stop by the YCL and get a library card and check out a book or two during their special week. Students participating will have their names entered in a drawing for a free graphic novel or book. A special display of popular young adult books will be available for teens to check out and write a review on the enclosed bookmark.

Join the staff for the film "The Hobbit: An Unexpected Journey" at 3:45 p.m. on Wednesday, Oct. 16, in the library meeting room. The film is a first in a trilogy of films based on the enduring masterpiece "The Hobbit" written by J.R.R. Tolkien.

Local author Mark Adderley will visit the library at 3:45 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 17, for a reading and signing of his book "McCracken and the Lost Island": "The year is 1913; the place, Europe. McCracken, inventor, engineer, and big-game hunter, tells the stories of his adventures in a series of novels made for everyone who loves adventure, but especially for boys." Don't miss it!

Teens are encouraged to give back to their community during Teen Read Week by bringing soup and/or crackers to the library. All items will be donated The Contact Center.

75 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, October 11, 1938

- Hundreds of Sioux Falls residents were awakened abruptly at 3:30 a.m. today when a sharp earth tremor shook the city. It jarred houses, rattled dishes and windows and set pictures to swaying. It was accompanied by a deep rumbling noise. Lighter shock felt in Yankton.
- An ordinance designed to give the city authorities traffic control over bicycles, requiring the registration of all bicycles and regulating the operation of wheels within the city limits, was introduced by Harry Coates, commissioner of police and fire. By the provisions of the proposed ordinance the city will have a complete description of each bicycle which is expected to make recovery in case of a theft an easier matter.
