Yankton Rural AHEC Receives $1,000 Donation

Efforts to recruit certified nursing assistants in rural health care facilities in South Dakota received a boost Monday thanks to a donation from Golden Living-Center of Armour to the Yankton Rural Area Health Education Center. During a check presentation Monday, Oct. 6, at the Yankton Rural AHEC office, Golden Living-Center officials applauded efforts to enhance rural health care.

"Golden Living is proud to present this grant to Yankton Rural AHEC," said B.B. Woods, Executive Director, Golden Living-Center — Armour. "We are pleased to be able to support worthwhile organizations like the Yankton Rural AHEC, which are pillars of the Yankton Community.

The donation is made as part of Golden Living's Community Support Initiative grant program, which is funded through Golden LivingCenter — Armour parent company, Golden Living. The Community Support Initiative grants are charitable contributions giving in support of worthy non-profit community or regional organizations. Since the program's inception in 2005, more than 1,689 grants have been awarded; contributing $1,617,000 into local communities the company

Golden Living's community outreach and service supports the company's mission to improve quality of life through innovative healthcare, one person, one family, and one community at a time. Celebrating 50 years of service, the company and its predecessor companies have cared for more than four million patients since 1964, and today is a national leader in providing skilled nursing and post acute care.

"We are extremely grateful to Golden LivingCenter of Armour for this generous donation. This donation is an investment in the healthcare workforce of our service area touching 34 counties in southern South Dakota. Certified nursing assistants are in high demand. The Yankton Rural AHEC has several programs focused on increasing the number of CNAs ready and able to care for South Dakotans," said

Viau-Williams. "We also congratulate GoldenLiving on reaching a milestone of 50 years of service."

Yankton Rural AHEC brings CNA training to area high school students during the summer and will soon begin training students this fall and spring as part of regional career and technical education. A new Yankton Rural AHEC project, Rural Rewards — A Call to Care, offers flexible, accessible training to people who might be recareering or refocusing and eager to join the health care workforce as a CNA.

Harvest

temperatures. Now, we are seeing ... the concern if crops are maturing and drying down properly before being harvested."

The slower harvest has brought one benefit, Fuchs said. Local grain elevators generally aren't facing the common back-up of farmers waiting in line to deliver their crop.

"With the slower pace, they are handling grain a little bit better," he said.

Looking ahead, Fuchs doesn't foresee a repeat of last year's brutal winter. The prolonged cold included wind chill temperatures of minus 50 degrees prompted by a shift in the polar vortex.

The National Weather Service recently released its winter outlook.

The November-January forecast looks for slightly warmer temperatures for northern states, Fuchs said. However, the temperature is determined by whether the northern jet stream remains in Canada or penetrates deeper south, he said.

Climatologists are also gauging the probability of an El Nino weather pattern and its impact, Fuchs said. El Nino is an ocean-atmospheric phenomenon in the tropical Pacific that affects global weather patterns.

"The El Nino will continue to develop, not as robust as we first hoped or what we saw (as the probability) in the spring and early summer," he said. "There is a fairly weak El Nino developing. What it means for us is the big ques-

South Dakota state climatologist Dennis Todey sees a similar outlook.

"The basic take-home is El Nino is still likely to happen, but it's projected to be a weak one. Therefore, the expected impacts will likely be weaker," he told the Press & Dakotan.

We would still lean a little on the warm side for the winter, but the chances are only slightly increased.

The Climate Prediction Center forecast last week that the ocean and atmospheric coupling necessary to declare an El Nino has not yet happened. The CPC has continued its El Nino watch, with a 67 percent chance of development by the end of the year. A fairly high probability for El Nino exists during the November, December and January time frame, even into

February, according to NWS officials. El Nino patterns tend to produce below-normal precipitation.

Farmers will need to watch for a deep frost in the soil this winter, Fuchs said.

"You see some areas of above-normal soil moisture. All the moisture in the ground will freeze in the winter," he said. "We can expect another winter of frost depth deep into the soil, depending on how cold the temperatures get."

The ample soil moisture could provide a good set-up for 2015, Fuchs said. "What does that mean next spring when you start talking about planting and field conditions?" he asked.
