riage, Larsen was frequently physically and verbally abusive to Jendusa-Nicolai, putting her in an almost constant state of fear.

"My stomach would tighten up every time he came home," she recounted to the audience.

Those same words were spoken in a "20/20" television piece shown Friday to set up the background of the case.

Jendusa-Nicolai was eventually found by law enforcement. She experienced severe frostbite, resulting in the removal of all her toes.

"I still have my arms so I can hold my girls," Jendusa-Nicolai tearfully said in the "20/20" segment.

In addition to "20/20," she has appeared on several television programs, including Oprah and the Bio channel, and has traveled the country speaking out on domestic violence.

Schmaling detailed the investigation process that law enforcement went through to find Jendusa-Nicolai, from discovering the blood found on Larsen's floor, to how Larsen came off during interrogation ("he thought he was the smartest guy in the room" and "a real ladies man," Schmaling said), to the storage shed business card found in Larsen's wallet that ultimately led to Jendusa-Nicolai's rescue.

Jendusa-Nicolai said divorcing Larsen, despite enraging him to that degree, was the right thing to do.

"If I had stayed, maybe none of that would have ever happened," she said. "But if I had, I would be dying a very slow death. It kills you from the inside out."

She says she found the strength to leave him after seeing him passing on the terror to their two young daughters.

"This is a generational problem. It's a learned behavior. He acted that way, his dad acted that way, and I was not going to pass that onto my children," she said.

She also addressed arguably the biggest question in every domestic violence situation: Why do the abused stay?

"I think the number one factor is fear," Jendusa-Nicolai explained. "We know what these people can do, and they tell us what they will do if we do leave. We take it seriously."

She uses her survival story to give hope to those who feel trapped in abusive relationships.

"Even though this happened to me, I still made it. If I can make it through that, anyone whose suffering with a bad relationship today can make it through what they're going through," she claimed. "If I can change my life coming back from that, you can change your life coming back from domestic violence and your suffering. We can all help one another."

After having spent the last couple days in the area, both Schmaling and Jendusa-Nicolai had good things to say about the community's handling of domestic violence.

"You have a fantastic law enforcement group. It's been quite humbling to speak with law enforcement officers and see how passionate they are about domestic violence," Schmaling said.

"We have had many people come out to these talks the last couple days, and this shows me that this is a community that cares," Jendusa-Nicolai added.

NIORRARA, Neb. — A stakeholder meeting was held on Aug. 26, 2015, in regards to the proposed Niobrara East and West, Nebraska Highway 12 (N-12) highway improvement project to gauge potential support from local stakeholders on the preliminary Least Environmentally Damaging Practicable Alternative (LEDPA) identified by the US Army Corps of Engineers (USACE).

City Offers Free Drop-Off For Tree Limbs

Take advantage of free drop-off for street tree trimmings as part of the City of Yankton's annual effort to improve visibility and safety on city thoroughfares.

Tree limbs hanging over city streets and alleys must be trimmed to 12 feet and 10 feet over sidewalks. Property owners are responsible for trimming trees on their property or any trees growing in the boulevard next to their property.

Tree limbs and trimmings can be dropped off at the Transfer Station, located at 1200 West 23rd Street, free of charge from Oct. 12-24, Mondays through Saturdays 8 a.m.-3:45 p.m. (excluding Monday and Thursday evenings).

Tree trimming not only improves visibility for all drivers, but also helps keep the roads clear for emergency and other vehicles. Clear roadways mean that school buses can run routes on time, and snow plows can efficiently clear streets once the snow starts falling.

Visit www.cityofyankton.org for more information and for examples of tree pruning techniques.

Medicare Part D Enrolling Begins Oct. 15

SIOUX FALLS — This year's Medicare open enrollment season runs from Oct. 15-Dec. 7. Anyone 65 or over can review their Medicare Part D Prescription Drug plan options and change plans if desired during this time.

"Medical needs can change from year to year and open enrollment provides an opportunity for Medicare beneficiaries to review their plans and ensure their existing plan still meets their needs," said Sarah Jennings, state director for AARP South Dakota. "If you like your plan and it meets your needs, you don't have to do anything. But it's always a good idea to be a good consumer and review your options."

WHAT TO CONSIDER

You can compare Medicare coverage options on the Medicare Plan Finder at www.Medicare.gov. Click on "Find Health & Drug Plans." When looking at your options, consider the four C's: coverage, cost, convenience and customer service.

COVERAGE

Make sure that the doctors you see and the medications you take will still be part of your plan in the coming year. If upcoming plan changes affect your coverage, then it's important to review other Medicare coverage options.

COST

Like most other insurance, Medicare does not pay for all your health care costs. You are responsible for paying for expenses such as deductibles, coinsurance and co-payments. If two or more plans seem to offer about the same coverage, consider choosing the plan with the lowest overall cost. Remember, don't just look at the premium (monthly payment). Also consider the deductible (how much you pay out-of-pocket before insurance kicks in), and coinsurance and copayments (how much you pay out-of-pocket for each service like visiting a doctor or filling a prescription). Make sure to compare all of these features so you can find a plan that works for you and your wallet.

CONVENIENCE

Compare plans to see which doctors and hospitals are included in the coverage, as well as what local pharmacies participate. If you prefer mail-order pharmacies, check out which plans offer this option.

CUSTOMER SERVICE

The Medicare plan finder tool on www.Medicare.gov provides a quality rating for each plan. The rating covers several aspects of each plan, including customer service, member complaints, drug pricing, managing chronic conditions and more.

All plans now cover certain preventive services at no cost to you, thanks to the Affordable Care Act.

These include screenings like mammograms and colonoscopies and annual wellness visits with your doctor.

For one-on-one help with your Medicare decisions, contact SHIINE, the Senior Health Information and Insurance Education Program in Eastern South Dakota at 1-800-536-8197, Central South Dakota at 1-877-331-4834, Western South Dakota at 1-877-286-9072 or online at www.shiine.net.
