more than just that moment with Peter I skewed the time line by combining the basin and wounded hands in the same sculpture. Hopefully this presents the viewer with the bigger picture of Jesus "washing" us all.

What art project are you most proud of?

Every sculpture is my favorite piece and my worst frustration. Each has elements I love that aren't in any other sculpture, and each will have what I see as flaws I wish I could go back and correct. Sculptors are their own worst critics but we don't always agree with ourselves when we see our work two years later. We cringe, we have regrets just like parents who look back and see where they could have done better if only they knew... That's why if I did have to pick a favorite it would probably be the one I'm currently sculpting because I haven't had time to critique the progress yet.

What art projects are you currently working on?

I'm in the final stages of sculpting a 10-foot bronze monument of R.F. Pettigrew to be given to the city of Sioux Falls by its patrons. The project isn't just about the sculpture. Our goal is to give Pettigrew some redemption and tell his story after history has treated him a bit roughly. A great piece in the September/October 2010 issue of South Dakota Magazine is a good read on the project.
