Dear Editor:

In recent weeks, there has been much discussion about Kristi Noem's numerous speeding tickets including one at nearly 100 miles per hour. As a prosecutor for 15 years, I have other concerns as well.

What concerns me more are the multiple failures to appear in court. A failure to appear in court reflects disregard for law enforcement and the judicial system, one of our three branches of government. Warrants for failure to appear cost taxpayers money as well: the prosecutor, court reporter, clerk, judge and deputy who goes to serve the warrant are all paid salaries by taxpayers. A failure to appear increases the workload in the judicial system and wastes already scarce court docket time and resources.

It appears that this is not important to Kristi Noem... her time is much more valuable.

I urge the voters of South Dakota to support Stephanie Herseth Sandlin.

Nominations Sought For Yankton 'Woman Of Distinction' Awards

The Yankton Area Chamber of Commerce Women Community Leaders Committee are accepting nominations for the third annual "Woman of Distinction" awards. These awards are given to two women who have shown commitment and leadership qualities in the community.

There will be two awards that women can be nominated for: "Outstanding Professional Woman" and "Outstanding Woman Leader in Community Service." Applications can be found on-line at www.yanktonsd.com/distinctionluncheon and can be printed off and mailed to the Chamber or completed online, saved and e-mailed back. The criteria for each award are listed on the application. Nominations will be judged on the candidates meeting specified criteria and the thoroughness of the application submitted. Nominations are due no later than Dec. 1.

The winner from each category will be announced at the Feb. 21, 2011, Woman of Distinction luncheon. The luncheon will be held at the Roncalli Center of Mount Marty College located at 1105 W. 8th St.

The nominees from 2010 in the community service category were Dores Allan, Marjorie Gross, Carol Hanvas, Pam Kettering, Lori Lincoln, Nancy Sternquist, Nancy Teachout, Sister Margo Tschetter and Betty Viau. In the professional category the nominees were Carolyn Becker, Lois Halbur, Dr. Lori Hansen and Pam Rezac. For 2010, Pam Kettering received the Outstanding Woman Leader in Community Service Award and the Outstanding Professional Woman Award was awarded to Pam Rezac.

For more information about the Woman of Distinction applications and the luncheon, contact the Chamber at (605) 665-3636 or visit www.yanktonsd.com/distinction-luncheon.

Public Invited To Attend SESD SHRM Fall Conference

Local and area HR professionals, business owners & managers, supervisors and individuals who work with people, are encouraged to attend the Southeast South Dakota Society for Human Resource Management's 2010 Fall Conference which will be held on Wednesday, Oct. 27, at Minervas/Best Western Kelly Inn in Yankton.

The fall conference begins with a breakfast buffet and registration from 7:30-8 a.m. with the presentation running from 8-11:30 a.m. It will feature Jack Matens, a nationally-recognized Human Resources professional, who will share information he has garnered from 35 years of experience in business, education and mediation.

Matens, who has written articles for national publications and given numerous presentations on the national and regional level, has received rave reviews from thousands of workshop participants throughout the United States and Canada.

During his Oct. 27 program at the SESD SHRM fall conference, Matens will share his insights on "Understanding Employee Motivation." Those who attend will:

- Learn the principles of basic human motivation
- Evaluate a variety of major motivation theories
- Understand unique differences in adult motivation
- Examine the principles of motivation in the workplace
- Identify factors that can create an engaging, motivating work environment

In 2005, Matens was chosen as a speaker at the national Society for Human Resource Management (SHRM) conference in San Diego and facilitated the Tennessee SHRM Annual Leadership Conference in 2008. He has conducted an array of workshops throughout the United States and Canada for eight subsidiaries of ASTEC. His areas of expertise are Leadership, Strategic Planning, Customer Service, Team Building, Communications, Mediation and Conflict Management.

Matens earned his undergraduate degree in Humanities at Louisiana State University. He received his Masters in Education at Tennessee Tech and an additional Masters in Community Mental Health at University of Tennessee. A former Marine MP, Matens is currently Director of Human Resource Services for a noted employee benefits company — Russ Blakely & Associates.

This conference, which includes a breakfast buffet, is free for SESD SHRM members. SESD SHRM members are asked to RSVP to aryken@yanktonmedicalclinic.com. Other attendees are asked to enclose a $20 fee with their completed registration form and send them to SESD SHRM, c/o Ann Ryken, Yankton Medical Clinic, 1104 W. 8th St., Yankton, SD 57078. Registration and RSVP deadline is Friday, Oct. 22.

This conference qualifies for three recertification credits from the Human Resources Certification Institute HRCI.

For more information or to obtain a registration form, contact Ann Ryken at the address above or by calling (605) 665-6948.

Extension Conference On Healthy Aging Set For Salem

BROOKINGS — The South Dakota Cooperative Extension Service will host its fourth annual "Aging Healthy, Happy & Wise" conference on Oct. 5 in Salem.

The conference begins at 8:30 a.m. and will take place at the Salem City Armory, 720 Peck St., Salem. The one-day program will explore topics that South Dakota's aging population or caregivers may face. The registration fee covers snacks and a catered noon lunch.

During the conference, the South Dakota Cooperative Extension Service will join with Candise Gregory of the South Dakota Senior Medicare Patrol to provide information on fraud. Large group sessions include a panel on what Medicare covers, a session on Hospice 101 by staff from Compassionate Care Hospice, and a presentation on healthy teeth and mouths by Delta Dental of South Dakota.

The day ends with a presentation by humorist Sheila Letcher entitled "What happened while I was napping?"

People attending will have the chance to win door prizes, participate in various health screenings, including free hearing screenings provided by the South Dakota Lions Foundation, and visit vendor booths focused on services and products for seniors.

In addition to the South Dakota Cooperative Extension Service, other partners who organized the conference include Leisure Living Independent & Assisted Living of Hartford and Salem and the South Dakota Senior Medicare Patrol.

For more information, call the Minnehaha County Extension office at 605-367-7877.

BROKAW

should make it better," Brokaw said.

Farber had a major impact on Brokaw's life and took Brokaw under his wing, even when Brokaw wasn't focused on school or his future.

"I came out of high school as a whiz kid and went off the tracks, but Doc didn't give up on me. He told me to drop out of college and said to focus on wine and women, and when I was done with that, to come back," he said. "After six months, I came crawling back. He filled out my schedule and told me what GPA to get."

Not only did Farber help Brokaw restart his education, the educator also played a role in how Brokaw found his way into television.

"I had lost a job prospect and didn't know what I would do," Brokaw said. "I was talking to Doc and said there may be a job in Omaha. He told me to get in his car and (he) drove me there for the interview, and he got me my first job."

However, Brokaw wasn't the only one who benefited from behind under Farber's wing.

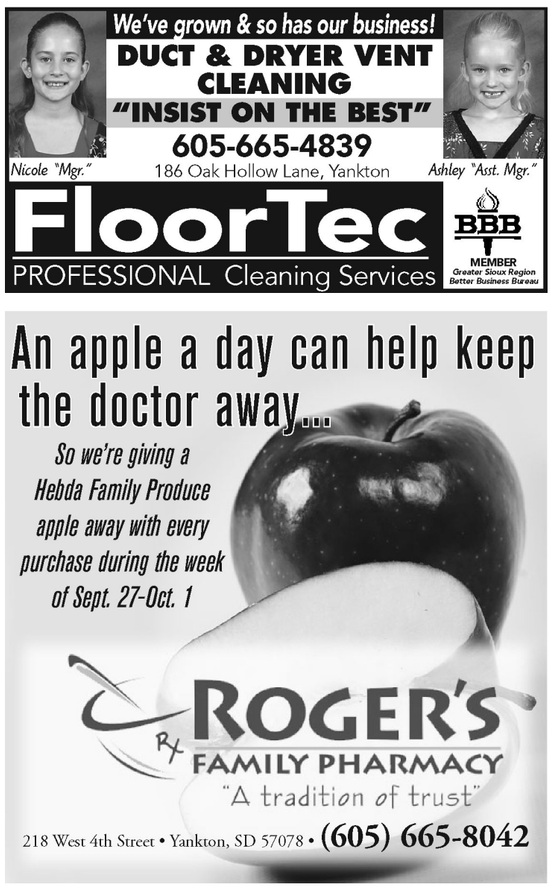
"Doc changed a number of lives because of the confidence he showed in students," he said. "He was a great citizen for all of us — a mentor and father figure for a generation of students."

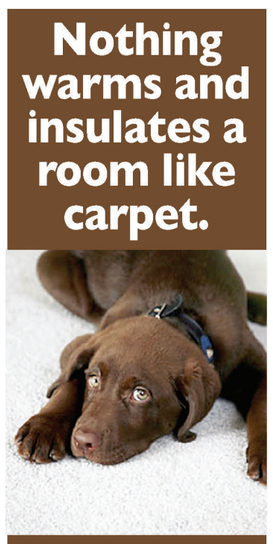
Now Brokaw is asking Americans to be like the generation he grew up with — the one Farber steered him toward — because he no longer sees the same type of cohesion in America.

"Now that I am in my 70th year, I look back on my own life and on my childhood, and I am reminded in how I was raised. I was raised in a community when someone was always there to help, and we all helped to see the accomplishments," Brokaw said. "Now, I see gated communities that have lost the cohesive spirit. We are living in a fractious time."

Farber played such an impact on Brokaw's life, that he felt the need to honor his former mentor on national television this Friday on NBC's The Today Show just after 8 a.m.

"It will be my pleasure to do a tribute to him on Friday morning," Brokaw said. "The way I have chosen to do that is to talk about where we are in American Life, and where we should be going."

But the future isn't bleak because, in Brokaw's opinion, it offers many different directions, which is another thing Farber taught his students.




"As Doc would say, consider the possibilities," said Brokaw, who finished his speech with that line, and a smile as a tribute to his old friend and mentor.
