

Corps Restricting Boat Access To Portions Of River

As the Missouri River below Gavins Point Dam reopens for vessel traffic, there still continues to be significantly increased water flows from Gavins Point Dam. These flows are creating swift river currents and extremely hazardous conditions in the Missouri River directly below Gavins Point Powerplant and Spillway.

As a result, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is restricting boat access to a portion of the river. Effective immediately, vessels of any kind will be prohibited from a line stretching from the electronic sign near the boat ramp in Nebraska Tailwaters Recreation Area to a similar sign on the Training Dike Recreation Area and west to the dam.

This restriction is in effect until further notice.
