Bank Fishing Below The Dam Now Allowed

After being closed during the past few months due to safety concerns related to the increased flows from Gavins Point Dam, bank fishing in the tailrace below Gavins Point Dam will be allowed again starting immediately, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers has announced.

Fisherman are advised to use caution when walking on the rocks along the banks as some areas closer to the water's edge may be slippery.

Boat ramps are also open, but vessels of any kind will be prohibited from a line stretching from the electronic sign near the handicap dock in Nebraska Tailwaters Recreation Area to a similar sign on the Training Dike Recreation Area and west to the dam. Buoys will also be placed along this line to help delineate the zone. This restriction is in effect until further notice.

The Corps is asking for cooperation from all fisherman and boaters to ensure a safe experience.

Yankton Historial Soc. To Meet In Oct.

The Yankton County Historical Society will hold its 50th annual meeting at the historic Mead Building on the Human Services Center campus at 2 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 9.

There will be a social hour featuring music by Kim Evander and Karen Lipp. There will be a brief business meeting from 3-3:15 p.m. led by YCHS Board Chair Dr. James Nyberg. Then a live auction featuring many interesting and valuable items will be held, under the direction of auctioneer Bill Bobzin.

Following the auction, YCHS Board of Directors and friends will perform a brief excerpt from "The Pageant of Yankton," based upon the work by Joseph Mills Hanson.

Non-members of the Society are invited to participate by purchasing tickets. Call 665-3898 or stop by the Dakota Territorial Museum, 610 Summit St. Deadline is Oct. 1.

St. Wenceslaus To Hold Bazaar Sunday

TABOR — The annual St. Wenceslaus Parish Bazaar will be held Sunday, Oct. 3, at Beseda Hall in Tabor. The event runs from 2:30-7 p.m.

The menu includes chicken, dressings, dumplings, sauerkraut, mashed potatoes and gravy, vegetable and fruit salad, rolls, kolaches and desserts.

There will also be games, concessions, a cake walk, raffle prizes and more.

the public to believe that public higher education is inefficient, Abbott said.

"The fact is, public education is complicated," he said. "We have many bosses. Students have many needs. We do things pretty well, but the public does not believe that."

This point was driven home for Abbott when he recently signed a petition calling for a 1-percent sales tax increase to bring funds to Medicaid/Medicare and K-12 education. Public higher education was not included.

"Public higher ed and K-12 should not be competing against each other for funds," he said. "We should be in lock-step."

Abbott said that when he asked why public higher education was not included, he was told that research indicated approximately 50 percent of people in the state would support the tax with just K-12.

"When you include public higher education, the percentage of people who indicate that they would vote for it declined to 30 (percent)," he said. "To me, that is a very scary situation."

South Dakota has never been "a state that 'likes' taxes," Abbott said.

"We do not expend what I think are reasonable funds in making the appropriate investments in research and development in things that we know we can do better if we just had the opportunity," he said. "That's where I think we have trouble as a state. From 1889 forward, we have not made the appropriate investments. We just don't do it. It's good enough the way it is. Well, it isn't. It's not going to be, and it shouldn't be."

Conversations about the very nature of higher education are changing now, as well, with an emphasis on speed both in the classroom and the transition into the workforce.

Abbott recalled an exchange he had at a public meeting held by

75 YEARS AGO

Wednesday, September 30, 1936
 • A section of South Dakota's 1929 primary law dealing with election contests was held unconstitutional today by the state supreme court in an opinion which held Fred M. Hohn entitled to the democratic nomination for county commissioner in Davison county. The supreme court, in a three to one decision, said section 45, chapter 118 of the laws of 1929 was invalid because it is not within the scope of the title of the act, as required by the state constitution. The section involved provides for primary election contests, which are not mentioned in the title. In this case Hohn, originally declared the winner in the primary, brought suit in the supreme court after George Bauer won an election contest against him.

• Wholesale destruction of republican campaign literature throughout the state, particularly posters and pictures of candidates, was reported today by State Chairman Harlan J. Bushfield.

50 YEARS AGO

Saturday, September 30, 1961
 • Within sight of her 57th birthday, Mary Diehl (Mrs. Maurice Diehl) of The Apple Tree resort near Springfield won her private pilot's license at Sioux Falls Friday afternoon. Her achievement starts a new chapter in a log book which dates back to 1956.

• The 1961 distinguished tourist service award given by the South Dakota Motel Association was awarded to Yankton this year. The presentation of the award was made at the banquet held in the Spearfish Legion hall Friday evening in connection with the annual convention of the South Dakota Motel Association. An engraved plaque to Mayor Milford Vandervehl and a $100 check to Warren J. Hobson, manager of the Yankton Chamber of Commerce. Bottum said, "Yankton did those extra things that need to be done to build our tourist business, and other towns in South Dakota should follow its example."

25 YEARS AGO

Tuesday, September 30, 1986
 • Appearing at the Sioux Falls Arena on Monday, President Regan, urging South Dakotans to re-elect Republican Sen. James Abdnor, said the best hope for financially struggling farmers is to send Abdnor and other Republicans back to Congress.

• Boxes and carrying cages contained with every kind of exotic animal, from Alaskan foxes and ferrets to ducks, doves and turtles, lined the stalls of the Bloomfield Sale Barn on Sunday. They were all part of the merchandise being sold at the Exotic Bird and Animal sale - the fifth of its kind to be held in Bloomfield.

"I can't remember ever being asked a question like, 'Why do you offer (general) psychology? What is the point in that? Counseling I get, clinical psychology I get. ... How does it lead directly to a job?' I was astounded to find the person who asked the question was a high school guidance counselor," he said.

The discussion regarding education has moved from content to the number of credit hours being generated and the number of students being taught, Abbott said.

"For a liberal arts institution, that's a scary public attitude. I think the real question is this: Is fundamental change really necessary? Are we going in the right way? Do we need to just tweak around the edges, or do we have to make significant change?" he said. "I think that's going to be the question the next four, five, 10 years, and I think it's going to have to be answered."
