Discovery Mime Theatre To Perform Saturday

VERMILLION — Experience a colorful world of captivating illusions and physical drama. Feel the rhythm of music and the magic of pantomime, when Discovery Mime Theatre performs at 7 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 15, at Washington Street Arts Center, 202 Washington St., Vermillion.

The performance will be preceded by a potluck dinner at 6 p.m. and will be followed by Vermillion Area Arts Council's annual meeting and election of board members.

The event is free and open to the public

Discovery Mime Theatre's show consists of a variety of original mime vignettes precisely cued to music and brought to life by silent actors, Brian Begley and Mary Inman. All ages enjoy Discovery Mime Theatre's fast-paced stories. Slapstick comedy, juggling and puppetry make their performances unique and captivating.

Since 1981, Brian Begley and Mary Inman have been entertaining audiences throughout the central United States. They have studied under world famous mime Marcel Marceau, hold BFA degrees in acting, and are Artists in Residence at the University of South Dakota. They have toured throughout the US, Mexico, Canada and Costa Rica. Discovery Mime Theatre's Public Television special "My Parents The Mimes," won the National PBS 1993 Gold Áward and Central Educational Network's 1993 first place award for Youth and Children's Programs.

The performance is being sponsored by Vermillion Area Arts Council, and the South Dakota Arts Council, an affiliate of the National Endowment for the Arts.

Gift' Is A Gift For Pet Lovers

"The Gift of Pets: Stories Only a Vet Could Tell" by Bruce R. Coston, D.V.M.; © 2012, Thomas Dunne Books; 302 pages.

BY TERI SCHLICHENMEYER

People say you're pet is lucky.

He's got a bed in every room — including the one you share with him. She has treats whenever she wants, toys are spread everywhere, you've got collars in all colors, and you always remember to sign your pet's name on every greeting card.

Yep, it's Pet Heaven around your house but really ... you know who's got the bigger blessing. In the new book "The Gift of Pets" by Bruce R. Coston, D.V.M., you'll read about people, pets, and a vet you won't soon forget.

Like many small-town Minnesota kids, Bruce Coston dreamed of someday becoming a veterinarian. He carried that dream, and a yearning to work with horses, through his high school years until, at age seventeen, he found a local vet with an extreme amount of patience who allowed Coston to job-shadow.

A couple of disastrous housecalls and a big misunderstanding later, Coston, who'd had no experience with cattle or horses, realized that working with large animals wasn't for him. Dogs and cats, though? Purrfect.

Today, Coston owns a veterinary clinic in Virginia, where he cares for pets and the people who love them and where, from both ends of the leash, his clients teach him. He's learned, for example, that children and pets go together but you can't force a love of horseback riding.

From a certain Mr. Johnston, Coston discovered that even when a client becomes a pain in one's posterior, it doesn't diminish the love that client has for his dog. Nor does it lessen the pain when the dog dies.

Another client, Mrs. Laughlin, told Coston that "money is no object" when it came to her pet's life. Pets are loved, he learned, but people don't always fare as well: her spouse's life-saving medicine stretched the budget

At Coston's hospital, there are pets that arrive in terrible health and some that come for a happy visit. There are close calls and triumphant treatments. Walk in the door, and you'll hear barking, greetings from the clinic cat, laughter, horseplay and practical jokes. And, like every other clinic that deals with birth, death, and what's in between, you'll also find sadness and missing friends.

Cozy. That's the best word I can think of to describe "The Gift of Pets." You just get a cozy, blanket-and-hot-cocoa feeling when you read a book like this.

Author Bruce R. Coston will make you laugh, yes, but he's likewise respectful. He tells stories of eccentric owners, unique pets, and the relationships they have with one another, then he writes about humans who helped his career and critters that enhanced it. That makes this book a must-read if you're a pet person, but understand that you'll want a tissue handy while you're reading it. If you don't have a pet, you'll want one of those by

From its irresistible cover to the warm, wonderful story inside, this is a book to wrap yourself in. But beware: start "The Gift of Pets" and, well, good luck getting anything

Trowbridge To Speak At MMC On Sept. 25

Mount Marty College will host author and Missouri Poet Laureate William Trowbridge during this year's Great Plains Writers' Tour. Trowbridge's presentation will be held at 7 p.m. Tuesday, Sept. 25, in MMC's Marian Audito-

Trowbridge holds a B.A. in Philosophy and an M. A. in English from the University of Missouri-Columbia and a Ph.D. in English from Vanderbilt University. In April 2012, he was appointed to a two-year term as Poet Laureate of Missouri.

USD Announces Theatre Schedule

VERMILLION — The University of South Dakota Department of Theatre's 2012-2013 season brings to the Wayne S. Knutson Theatre a Greek tragedy, two musicals, and a farce reminiscent of silent era movies.

The season opens with "Medea," Euripides' towering classic, on Sept. 28-Oct. 1. Performed with the ancient convention of masks, Medea reveals the tragic side of jealousy and betrayal when Medea vows revenge after being wronged and discarded by her husband, Jason. The holidays kick off with

"Brigadoon," Ålan Jay Lerner and Frederick Loewe's endearing musical, on Nov. 29-Dec. 3. Set in a fantastical Scottish town, Brigadoon features high spirited folk dancing, spectacular sets and costumes, and musical theatre standards like "I'll Go Home with Bonnie Jean" and "Almost Like Being in Love." Brigadoon is produced in collaboration with Music Department and the USD

Second semester finds the farce "Silent Laughter" on the main stage, Feb. 20-24. Written by Billy van Zandt and Jane Milmore, "Silent Laughter" brings Roaring 20's silent movie mayhem to the stage as a dashing hero overcomes jail, poverty, World War I and a dastardly villain to win the girl of his dreams.

The Tony Award and Pulitzer Prize-winning musical "Rent" concludes the season April 17-21. With book, music and lyrics by Jonathan Larson, "Rent" follows a year in the life of a group of young artists struggling to make it in New York City. The pop-rock score and story about finding love and living for today resonates with audiences of all ages.

All performances are in the Wayne S. Knutson Theatre with evening performances at 7:30 p.m. and the Sunday matinees at 2 p.m. A form for ordering season tickets can be downloaded from the USD Theatre website at www.usd.edu/theatre or can be requested by calling 605-677-5400.
