The summer of 2012 will be remembers for its severe drought and sweltering heat. ABOVE LEFT: This church sign in Scotland reminded passers in late July that, no matter how hot it got, there were places where it was a bit warmer. (Dockendorf) ABOVE RIGHT: The heat drove people to seek relief any way they could get it, although this tractor operator probably didn't see this dousing of relief coming during the Menno Fourth of July parade. (Hertz) RIGHT: On a warm night in August, several dozen people gathered at the foot of Yankton's Meridian Bridge to scribble their thoughts on the "Before I Die" interactive display. (Hertz)
