61st Harrington Lecture Set For USD

VERMILLION — "Counting What Counts," a presentation by Tina Keller, Ph.D., is the 61st annual Harrington Lecture at the University of South Dakota at 7 p.m. on Monday, Sept. 23 at Farber Hall inside Old Main.

Keller, associate dean with the College of Arts & Sciences and professor of physics, has actively worked to promote physics in South Dakota and she has been involved with the efforts to promote USD's participation in the Sanford Underground Research Facility in western South Dakota.

A member of the USD faculty for 24 years, Keller also served as the chair of the Department of Earth Sciences and Physics, and currently serves as the director of the physics program. In addition to teaching calculus-based introductory physics, modern physics and astronomy, Keller's research interests include the search for Dark Matter and Neutrinoless Double Beta Decay, as well as condensed matter physics and physics education. She has also served as the Faculty Athletics Representative for USD since 2006, and played a key role in the institution's transition from NCAA Division II to Division I. In 2006, she was the recipient of USD's prestigious Belbas-Larson Award for Excellence in Teaching. Keller graduated from North Dakota State University with a B.S. in 1984 and a Ph.D. in 1988. In 2010, she was named a distinguished alum of the NDSU College of Science and Mathematics.

Keller

Named in 1966 in honor of Elbert Harrington, professor of speech and dean of the College of Arts & Sciences (1945-1970), the lecture is an annual event featuring a distinguished professor with long-standing service to the College of Arts & Sciences. Each year a faculty committee in Arts & Sciences recommends to the dean the name of a faculty member to deliver the Harrington Lecture. The faculty member must be a teacher and scholar, and the lecture must be non-technical, blending insight into liberal education with the faculty member's work as a scholar. A reception will be held immediately following the lecture.

Literacy Week Takes Aim At Change

Do you remember how it felt the first time you wrote your own name? Many of you don't because you learned to print your name at the age of four or five. Imagine how you would feel if you weren't a child but already an adult.

During National Adult Education and Family Literacy Week, Sept. 23-29, YALC will be involved in activities to promote literacy throughout the community. Table tents will be placed in several restaurants.

Thirty million adults in the United States cannot read, write or do basic math above a third grade level. That is the situation that the Yankton Area Literacy Council, the South Dakota Literacy Council and ProLiteracy is trying to change.

You may not know anyone who cannot write their name. It is possible to be one of the invisible illiterates in this country. Or have a very limited grasp of reading, writing or doing basic math.

Many of the adults who fall into that group are very intelligent. Just imagine how much energy you would have to expend to keep others from knowing that you can't read! Others are developmentally disabled. Still others aren't natives of this country and don't know English.

Families are also affected by literacy. Children whose parents don't have a high school education or G.E.D. are more likely to score lower in vocabulary assessments. Parents who do have a certificate are 11 percent more likely to help their children understand their homework.

Financially, we have all seen statistics that the better educated earn more. Single mothers are 24 percent less likely to be on welfare when they have their diploma, ProLiteracy states. Those without a diploma are more likely to have health issues and to use the emergency room more.

To become a tutor in reading, mathematics or English as a Second Language, contact YALC Coordinator Bev Calvert at 665-3948 or stop at United Way Offices, 610 W 23rd, Suite 11.

Statistics provided by ProLiteracy, the largest adult literacy and basic education membership organization in the nation. It works with adult new readers and learners and with local and national organizations to help adults gain the reading, writing, math, computer, and English skills they need to be successful. ProLiteracy advocates on behalf of adult learners and the programs that serve them, provides training and professional development, and publishes materials used in adult literacy and basic education instruction. ProLiteracy has 1,000 member programs in all 50 states and the District of Columbia and works with 50 nongovernmental organizations in 34 developing countries. Criminal Charges Dropped Against Former Clerk

BY RANDY DOCKENDORF
 randy.dockendorf@yankton.net

CENTER, Neb. — Criminal charges have been dropped against a former Verdigré, Neb., village clerk who faced three counts of theft by deception.

Alisha Bartling had faced the charges in Knox County Court. She was scheduled for a Sept. 26 court appearance.

The charges were related to loans she handled from Verdigré's housing rehabilitation program during 2010 and 2011. The loans went to Bartling and her husband, and to her husband's business.

The special prosecutor, Holt County attorney Tom Herzog, dismissed the charges, according to Knox County Court clerk Betty Boggs. Herzog filed the dismissal Wednesday, she said.

Bartling was fined $6,000 last Friday by the Nebraska Accountability and Disclosure Commission. The civil penalty was part of a settlement reached by Bartling and the commission, which approved the agreement 8-0.

Bartling was found guilty of four violations of use of public office for personal financial gain or that of a family member. She was also found guilty of one violation of use of public resources other than allowed by law by the commission.
