"He retired and we moved to Yankton permanently in 2006," Sally said. "My mother was from Olivet and she was able to live in Yankton with us for 3-4 years before she passed. As a child growing up in California my mother used to tell stories about coming to Yankton to Gurney's to see Lawrence Welk play. It was almost like I knew the town before I moved here, it was ingrained in my memory from my mother's stories."

Sally and her daughter, Terry Vinson, were realtors in Omaha, Neb., and they started working in Yankton in 2005.

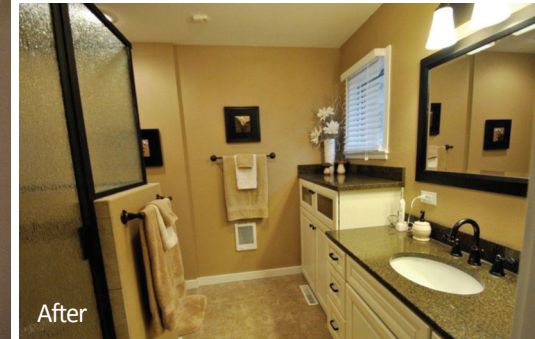

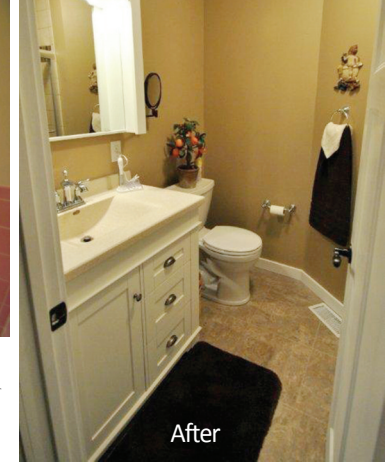

"We keep my husband busy with our business. He measures houses, plants signs for us and just generally works harder for us now than he did before he retired," Sally said.

Sally said she loves Yankton and has been pleasantly surprised by the quality of home décor items that can be bought locally.

"Our home is filled with items I've collected over the years from all over, but all the furniture was bought locally at either Hatch or Slumberland," she said. "Yankton is very lucky to have a variety and quality of items you can buy right here in town."

One of the unique obsessions found in Sally's and David's home is "pretend" food.

"I love pretend food. I use it a lot in staging but also in my own home," Sally said. I think it adds a personal feeling, like someone was just here baking or drinking a cup of coffee."
