Magazine

and everything. I really feel like there haven't been any changes yet, and that's really surprising."

She added the goals of South Dakota Magazine are the same from this point on.

We still have the same goals — telling really great stories and entertaining our readers," she said. "Every time they get the magazine in the mail, we want them to be wowed by it and we're just focusing on those stories."

Katie said they also intend to look into expanding into book and product options in the future alongside the magazine.

Bernie said this transition has given him a chance to realize how unique the magazine has been at nearly 30 years in publication.

"I've been so busy since 1985 with the magazine that I haven't had time to think about it," he said. "But when you see the numbers (45,000 subscribers and 180,000 readers), it's grown beyond anything we could imagine. and that's because South Dakota is a unique state to publish a magazine in. Much bigger and wealthier states really struggle to put out a state magazine like we do, and we've just been blessed with support, mostly from fun to be a part of that." But Bernie, who's in the process of running for a Senate seat in the state legislatisers and it's been a fot of ture, isn't totally walking away from the magazine.

"Ĭ'll probably be poking around, doing some writing and photography and I've been busy in public service,' he said. "I think I'll still be plenty busy, I'm just trying to get it down under 60-70 hours (per week) down to a more reasonable time so I can get in the boat once in a while.
