interceptions while completing 63.4 percent of his passes.

"Those two players really worked well together," Belichick said.

"He had the opportunity to watch Tom and learn from Tom when he came into the league. Very competitive and hard-working player with a lot of talent and I think he made Tom better and they made each other better."

when things look bleak.

Twice during his nearly 40-minute speech, Nagy referred his program's early struggles in Division I as a blessing in disguise.

Starting with the 2004-05 season, the Jackrabbits had six consecutive losing seasons (four times losing at least 20 games), and didn't post a winning campaign until 2010-11.

"For the first time in my life, I wasn't a winner, and I didn't know how to handle it," Nagy said.

Then came one day in church when his priorities were straightened out.

"It hit me," Nagy said, choking up.

"God said, 'Do you want to win or do you want to know me?' It hit me again like a light.

"It was another step in my relationship with God."

Other such moments when Nagy admits his faith was strengthened centered around his adopted daughter, Naika, and his two subsequent trips to Haiti — her home nation.

Most notably coaching certain games barefoot, Nagy has since become active with Samaritan's Feet, an organization that provides shoes for children in need.

His second trip to Haiti came a year ago, when he took his basketball team to the Caribbean country.

In both trips, one of the things that stood out most was the Haitian people's faith in God, Nagy said.

"I was trying to figure out why," he said.

"Everything we have, just the comforts, sometimes I start to wonder if they are blessings."

Near the end of his speech Wednesday, Nagy encouraged the crowd of mostly high school and college athletes to pursue a mission trip.

Why? Because, if nothing else, the experience is an eye-opener, he said.

"When I go to these other countries, these people have such a faith in God, because some of them have to literally trust God for their needs," Nagy said.

Pele got emotional over the project, tearing up as he said he hoped the new field would help spark local kids' interest not only in soccer but in science.

"My father named me Edson after Thomas Edison," said the longtime star striker, whose birth name is Edson Arantes do Nascimento.

He said he hopes the next generation of Brazilians will help bring the country as much success in science as it has had in soccer.

"I'm sure that soon the No. 1 scientists in the world are going to be Brazilians," Pele said as he brushed aside a tear.
