VERMILLION – Sixth graders from Vermillion, Irene-Wakonda, Centerville and Gayville-Volin areas gathered in Clay County Park this week for a day of celebration and education.

After an introductory program Wednesday morning, the sixth-graders went through seven activity areas focusing on seven distinct experiences in art, science, history and boating.

The students wrote haiku poetry, created images of nature, learned about local birds and animals, experimented with the meandering nature of this section of the Missouri River with hands-on modules in the National Park Service's Stream Table and Mobile Ranger Station, watched how pollution happens in an aquifer, practiced water safety and rescue, and folded and decorated their own handmade origami boats.

Grace Freeman, a Vermillion resident, is one of the founders of the event.

"A long time ago, we lived in Montana and on the river they do this with 4,000 fourth graders over a week," she said. "They set up teepees and there's an educational session. The night before they do it, they do this river appreciation night with community members and they give awards to the people that have been really instrumental in preserving the natural beauty of the river."

So inspired was Freeman by this event that upon returning to Vermillion, she recruited Nancy Carlsen and Cindy Kirkeby to assist in creating a similar event for Vermillion.

"They, in a weak moment, said they would help," Freeman remembered. "It's what it is because of our three different personalities. Nancy does the maps. She does all this layout and organization. Cindy does our spreadsheets and we all divide the phone calling and the connections to help make it all come together."

Many volunteers made the event possible according to Freeman including her husband, Harry, along with several of his students from the University of South Dakota and a few from Vermillion High School.

"We have all these camps and, because Vermillion has such a great artist community, the arts council sponsors these two to come, the poet and the art teacher," Freeman said. "Later, we have the drum group coming. We have the singers with Dr. Wayne Evans. The kids are going to meet back here after they do seven camps and the drum will start. They'll talk a little about the Lakota relationship with the river and they will dance."

USD also was one of the sponsors of the event.

The sixth-graders enjoyed their own relationship with the river by making their own miniature boats.

"This year, we're doing something different with the boat camp where they're making oragami boats that they actually get to take home," Freeman said. "The shape of the boat – the round shape – it makes what the Mandan Sioux call the Bull Boats after the bison bull. They would take the reeds or the willow and make a round shape and cover it with the buffalo hide on the bottom, and they would go down the river on these round boats. So that's what they're making this year."

A few of the homemade boats will even be used to spread the word about river appreciation, according to Freeman.

"They're going to make two or three big ones and, after the drums perform, we'll be up here with a couple of boats and we'll let those go with our website," she said. "We just started a new website two nights ago. Our hope is that maybe those boats will go downstream to a friendly person that will say, 'Oh, there's a website. Let's tell them where we found this boat,' just to help the

P&D Seeking Content From Veterans

The Yankton Press & Dakotan is undertaking its 2015 "Heritage" edition, which will be released in late September. This year, we are undertaking a "70/40" edition, a two-part project commemorating the 70th anniversary of the end of World War II in 1945 and the 40th anniversary of the fall of Saigon and the end of the Vietnam War in 1975.

For this project, we are asking our readers to contribute their accounts and thoughts on these two wars. If you are a veteran of either conflict, we want to hear your story. If you weren't a soldier in these conflicts, we would be interested in hearing your civilian memories from either war. Or, if you have a family member who was involved in either war, you are invited to submit your recollections of those experiences. We also want to hear from readers about their thoughts on the legacies of these two wars.

We also want to run photographs of soldiers from their days in service. Emailed digital documents would be preferred. If original images are sent to us, please include a stamped, self-addressed envelope. You could also bring the photos to the Press & Dakotan office at 319 Walnut and we will scan them in and get them back to you in minutes.

Please send your thoughts to us to: 70/40 Edition, 319 Walnut, Yankton, SD 57078; or email us at news@yankton.net. Our deadline for this material is Wednesday, Sept. 16. If you have any questions, contact Kelly Hertz at 665-7811 or kelly.hertz@yankton.net/.

House Number Must Meet Requirements

The City of Yankton reminds property owners that emergency personnel as well as delivery services depend on address numbers being displayed properly. When doing exterior maintenance chores this summer be sure to check the visibility of your house numbering.

City Ordinance requires all buildings display numbers on the door or front of the structure that are a minimum of 3 inches in height and are visible and legible from the street immediately in front of the building. Numbering on mailboxes, in landscaping or on curbs is not sufficient.
